Different Dresses

PARIS STYLES

NEVER before has linen been suitable for such widely different purposes as this year. Dressmakers in Paris are using linen for evening frocks and golf suits, gloves and corsets, race frocks and tennis shorts. Nothing is impossible with linen, and which is more important, everything looks exactly right.

Every shade imaginable comes in the plain linens—blues, browns, mulberry, and lime-green hues and meeting with the hearty endorsement of fashion dictators. The colours have the charm of old-fashioned linens without their drawbacks.

Nothing loses its original freshness so much as a hat in linen, but the new linens are so remarkable for their staying colours that this difficulty has been overcome, and hats in all sorts of delicate shades of linen are to the fore.

The suggestion is Councillor General L'Hopital of the department of the Seine, who has submitted a project for the conversion of the Paris catacombs into bomb-proof gasproof shelters.

The idea brings up immediately macabre thoughts of a vigil with the dead, for those parts of the catacombs visited by tourists are decorated by shinbones and arm bones in geometrical patterns, with friezes of grinning skulls above them. Steps lead from one level to another, with a skull disposed at each end of each step. Bones trace lugubrious Latin mottoes on the wall. Not exactly, one would say, a cheerful ambience for persons hiding from possible sudden and unpleasant death.

NUCLEUS FOR SHELTERS

But not all of the catacombs of Paris are filled with skeletons, and they provide the nucleus for shelters as easily utilisable as the champagne cellars of Rheims, which served in that capacity during the last war. The catacombs were originally quarries, but after a subsidence in the Rue d'Enfer (Hall Street), so called because no one knew how deep the cavity under it was, when half a dozen houses were swallowed up in 1774, the municipality filled in and abandoned all the cuttings except those under streets.

There still remained plenty. When the cemetery of the Innocents was condemned about 1780 to make way for the growth of the city, the bones it contained were removed to the Catacombs and arranged in the neat geometrical pattern which tourists gape at now. There were so many of them that the removal took 18 months. Between 1792 and 1814, the remains of 16 other cemeteries that disappeared before the growth of Paris also found their way to the catacombs. There also were disposed the bodies of many of the victims of the Revolution.

The corridors to which the public are admitted cover a length of 800 yards. These, however, are not the only galleries still in repair. There are others in which mushrooms are grown, connecting directly with the catacombs in the Left Bank not far from the Seine, which extend beyond the city limits. Isolated sections of the catacombs, now unconnected with the rest by practicable galleries, abound in the quarter of the church of Saint Julien le Pauvre, below restaurants which make a specialty of serving you meals hundreds of feet below the street level.

Besides the mushroom cellars extending to the suburbs of Montrouge, there are in the suburb of Gentilly other still practicable galleries which lead likewise all the way to the main body of the catacombs. Many galleries are still safe beyond those to which the public is admitted. Add the possibility of reopening filled in galleries, and strengthening those which are now unsafe to enter, and you have Paris provided with miles of underground shelters—enough space underground, perhaps, to

ENLISTMENT CAMPAIGNS

Washington, June 26.
The United States Army to-day was prepared to start enlistment campaigns intended eventually to bring the enlisted strength to 165,000 as authorized by Congress.

Permissible recruiting in the nine corps areas has been fixed at $1,700, which does not include Medical, Air Corps, or Signal Personnel.

The enlisted strength of the regular army as of March 31, 1935, latest official tabulation, was approximately 128,000. Enlistments will be only for the grade of private, and will be absorbed entirely in existing organizations.

The projected recruiting is intended merely to bring the army to the strength authorized by Congress in the War Department Appropriation Act for the fiscal year 1936, and the army at 165,000 will still be far below the strength of 280,000 authorized (but never sufficiently appropriated for) in the National Defence Act of 1920.

War Department officials pointed out that the enlisted strength of the army had dropped 118,000 and that in addition, the five-year air corps programme had not been supplied with new recruits, but had taken enlisted men from the Infantry, Cavalry, and other combat branches. Many Infantry and Cavalry companies have been undermanned.

ALLOTMENTS

Allotments to the various corps areas for enlistments starting July 1, and the strength of troops in those areas as of March 31, 1935, were as follows:

First Corps Area—Allotment, 2,180; troops March 31, 4,005.

Second Corps Area—Allotment, 3,814; strength March 31, 12,447.

Third Corps Area—2,237; 11,490.

Fourth Corps Area—2,966; 11,174.

Fifth Corps Area—2,012; 8,870.

Sixth Corps Area—1,570; 8,870.

Seventh Corps Area—3,164; 7,140.

Eighth Corps Area—19,640.

Ninth Corps Area—5,268; 12,251.

The strength of the Army outside the Corps Areas on March 31 was as follows: West Point Cadets, 1,221; Hawaiian Department, 14,238; Panama Canal, 9,188; Alaska, 280; Puerto Rico, 796; Philippines Department, regular 4,386; Scouts, 6,668; China, 712; at large, 387.

SUMMARIES OF STRENGTH

Summaries of enlisted strength of the Army at end of first quarter 1935 revealed the Infantry as the most numerous branch, with personnel at 38,898; but not greatly larger than the combined field artillery and coast artillery which had, respectively, 14,642 and 12,412 men.

Military experts say that the growth of Artillery relative to the infantry is an outgrowth of world war experience, when the Artillery became indispensable in preparing for and supporting the Infantry.

Growth in the Air branch is also a characteristic feature of post-war military establishments.

Enlisted Cavalry strength was 7,839; Quartermaster corps, 7,571; Medical Corps, 6,625; Engineer Corps, 4,260; Ordnance Department, 2,134; Signal Corps, 2,698. Despite widespread views of the public that chemical warfare has become of outstanding importance, that service engaged only 427 men.

Act of Congress allows the army 12,000 officers, and the actual number on March 31 was 11,817.—United Press.

INOCULATION OF DOGS

SANITARY BOARD APPROVES MOTION

A motion "That this Board, being of the opinion that mass or compulsory inoculation of dogs is an effective means of eradicating rabies, do respectfully urge the Government to take immediate steps to introduce a system of compulsory inoculation of all dogs in the Colony, such inoculation to be done by the Government free of charge," was carried by four votes to two at the fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board held in the Board Room yesterday afternoon. Mr. W. J. Carrie, Head of the Sanitary Department, presided.

Addressing the Board, Mr. Lo said:

I do not propose to take up the time of this Board unnecessarily by attempting any description of the appalling nature of the disease of rabies.

I start with the assumption that every one would like to see the disease eradicated from our midst as soon as possible. The question, then is: Are the present regulations, including those relating to the muzzling of dogs, effective?

The answer is obvious. I might borrow a legal phrase and say that the matter is res ipsa loquitur. The regulations have failed to achieve their object.

The next question, obviously is: Is there any other and more effective step which can be taken?

According to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, the answer is 'yes' and it is the system of mass inoculation.

I propose to inform this Board very briefly what is being done in various places relatively near Hongkong in combating this disease.

Law in Japan

First as regards Japan: The law in Japan is that a Governor of any Prefecture may, when he thinks fit, order the inoculation of all dogs. The order is enforced by the Police. The owners of the dogs bring them to the appointed Police Offices, where inoculation is done free by official Vets. Surgeons and a certificate given. Dogs may be inoculated by private Vets. and their certificates are shown to the Police when vaccination by the Police is dispensed with. Charges by private Vets. vary from one yen to two yen.

I understand that compulsory inoculation has been found 100 per cent effective in eradicating rabies in various districts in Japan.

As regards Kuala Lumpur: The following are extracts from the Annual Reports of the Institute for Medical Research in Kuala Lumpur:

From the 1930 Annual Report: Prophylactic inoculation of dogs was commenced in Malaya during the year 1926 and the results obtained have been sufficiently encouraging to justify continuance.

The procedure has been found by the Veterinary Authorities to be successful in so far that outbreaks can be controlled, but fresh outbreaks occur from time to time, and the incidence of the disease has not markedly diminished. It appeared that more energetic preventative measures were desirable and accordingly, compulsory "mass" inoculation has been tried. The town of Kuala Lumpur was selected. Inoculations were undertaken by the staff of the Veterinary Department at Police stations.

The figures given below show the number of rabid dogs reported within the limits of Kuala Lumpur during the years 1928, 1929 and 1930, and the results indicate that mass inoculation of the canine population in an endemic area may be of considerable value:

1928	1929	1930
Number of rabid dogs.....	20	20	0
Number of inoculations carried out.....	765	425	3200

A further experiment, on a smaller scale, was carried out in Kuala Selangor, and similar results were obtained.

Out of a total exceeding 5,000 inoculations only 3 failures to protect against rabies have been reported. In each case the inoculated dog had been in contact with a rabid animal.

and probably infected prior to inoculation.

Mass Inoculation

From the 1931 Annual Report: The mass inoculation of dogs in Kuala Lumpur was undertaken early in 1930. In view of a complete absence of rabies in Kuala Lumpur during the year following compulsory inoculation, vaccination was not enforced in 1931. In the latter months of that year, however, rabies reappeared and it was decided to enforce vaccination in 1932.

From the 1933 Annual Report: Mass inoculation of dogs was undertaken by the Veterinary Department in 8 areas at the beginning of the year, as follows:

(1) In Kuala Lumpur for the second successive year. For the second successive year no case of rabies occurred.

(2) In Kajang (Selangor) area, in which cases of rabies had occurred during 1932. No case of rabies occurred in 1933.

(3) In Penang Island, in which 8 cases of rabies had occurred in 1932, only 2 cases occurred in 1933, in the first 5 weeks of the year, i.e., during a period when, at the time of vaccination, the incubation period of disease in these two dogs would be too far advanced for the vaccine to be effective.

I understand that inoculation has been found absolutely effective in various districts in Indo-China.

The Form of Disease

It has been suggested that there are two kinds of rabies, namely the Californian type and the European type. Inoculation cannot be effective unless the vaccine is made from the type of virus in question. But I am informed that according to the Institute for Medical Research in Kuala Lumpur, there is no essential difference between the virus of rabies from Europe and America.

As regards the cost of the vaccine I understand that it is obtainable from the Animal Diseases Investigation Station of the Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry and from The Kitasato Medical Institute, both in Tokyo, at about 10 yen per 100 c.c., which would be sufficient to inoculate 20 dogs or a few more. It can also be obtained from the Institute for Medical Research in Kuala Lumpur and from the Pasteur Institute in Saigon at a price of less than 10 yen per 100 c.c., which would be sufficient to inoculate 20 dogs or a few more.

I have communicated with Messrs. Mustard & Co. Ltd., who are the local agents for Mulford vaccine and they have authorised me to state that their current price is $1.40 less 40 per cent discount amounting to H.K. $0.87 net, and that they felt sure that in due event of a large quantity being required, the price would be further reduced.

Suggested Heavy Fines

I believe that the public of Hongkong will enthusiastically co-operate under a system of compulsory mass inoculation, and that there will be no further defaulters.

As one means of penalising owners who have made default, I would advocate that it should be provided that the owner of any dog who has bitten a person and who cannot satisfy the Magistrate that the dog has been inoculated within 12 months should be fined heavily, even up to $500.

If the Magistrate is satisfied that he has the means to pay.

I do not say that any such regulation will be effective in getting all the dogs in the Colony—especially in some outlying districts—into the New Territories—inoculated. But I see no reason to doubt that the great majority of the dogs on the Island and in Kowloon will be inoculated. Surely it is self-evident that the greater the number of inoculated dogs that exist at any period the greater the immunity obtained by the community against the spread of the disease. And I would urge that the importation of any dog into the Colony be prohibited except on production of a certificate that it has been inoculated within 12 months or on the condition that the dog be forthwith quarantined and inoculated.

Dogs Tattooed

In Hongkong however, the situation appears to be even more baffling, because of the predominating number of a certain breed, namely the chow-chow. It is common knowledge that chow dogs have a very close resemblance to each other. This being the case, any system of photography for the purpose of identification would be of little value. However the real difficulty in identification arises, when an owner whether of a village-house or a junk has more than one dog of the same sex, colour and breed.

Coloured Spots

Dr. Li Shu-fan added that with reference to the tattooing of dogs, he would suggest that a red spot for 1936, green spot for 1937 and so on.

Dogs, of course, would not be allowed out without muzzles during the period of observation after inoculation had been carried out. He wished the Government would sincerely and without delay go into the question of the use of stock vaccine in the Colony.

Mr. Lo Replies

In the absence of an alternative method of identifying the inoculated dog, I would like to take this opportunity to advise now as I suggested to the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon last year, that when a dog is inoculated, it can be simultaneously tattooed with a special mark on the body. The tattoo-mark need only be a distinguishing mark and no more.

When this is carried out, all dogs caught without such marks should be dealt with as stray dogs.

I sincerely believe that the adoption of this device together with the issuance of the collar-badge and the certificate, would solve the problem and render the identification of the inoculated dog trebly assured.

In conclusion I need hardly remind members of the seriousness of the situation as revealed by the recent deaths from human rabies in the Colony. I am strongly of the opinion that it is imperative that a system of compulsory inoculation should be adopted without delay.

In dealing with such a dreaded disease as rabies no trouble and expense are too great for its eradication and Medical Science has laid the method at our very door.

I consider the great benefit to be derived from the proposed measure will far outweigh any reasonable expenditure.

I have much pleasure in seconding

the motion.

M. O. H. Replies

Dr. Pope, Medical Officer of Health, said that he could not follow Dr. Li's argument with regard to facilities for the identification of dogs. He remarked on the laxity of the local public and said that even if free inoculation of dogs was ordered there would still be defaulters. There was always to be considered the owner who did not care about his dog and allowed it to get into contact with other dogs that were not above suspicion, and also wander off the beach without muzzle or lead.

Safe and effective muzzling, he said, had proved time and again to be a very effective method for the eradication of rabies. There would always be a dangerous percentage, however, as every live craft of any adult size has a dog on board. His initial intention was to do not

NOTES OF THE DAY

WHO ARE HEROES?

Senator Clark, the man who sprang into prominence in Washington by declaring that the country was helpless to avoid entanglement in another major war, and who therefore suggested certain legislation to safeguard the nation's neutrality, is maintaining his rather hopeless campaign for action in the face of the Administration's lack of interest. In the opinion of his own generation he will never be a great man, in all probability. The great men are those who awaken intense nationalism amongst their contemporaries, who instill into the hearts of the people a strong contempt for those powers which run contrary to their own policies, who create that bristling national defiance in the face of competition or opposition which has characterized the progressive belligerents of the past. We have known few such men in history, and remember them with awe. We know of one or two such figures in this present day and sometimes look upon them with feelings which their own countrymen could not possibly comprehend, and certainly would not condone. And yet such men live on, their memories reverenced by the nation which they may have led to untold pain and ultimate ruin. The greatest of them all, Napoleon, even his enemies must have admired. There was no doubt that his own people worshipped him. Remember how they wept for him in his adversity and sacrificed their lives, their sturdy, gallant lives, that he might bring more glories home to France? Never was there a greater general, let us say; never a leader better loved; and yet, in the end, he led his glorious army to destruction at Waterloo. And the glories that were France's, which for a brief while had covered her wounds were stripped from her. And there were the scars! Would Napoleon have been remembered had he fought not in the battlefields but in Parliament and for the neutrality of France? We err more often than not in selecting the real hero of the hour. The little, forgotten men who face the jeers of the mob and the sneers of their colleagues when striving for some ideal beyond the pitiful understanding of the masses, are as brave, or braver than those other gentlemen who talk of mighty fleets and armies and shout defiance to the world. And although Senator Clark, from a Missouri village, will never stand beside Napoleon, he has the saner ambition. He hopes to give his country peace.

BRITAIN'S STAND

The assertion that the session of the Council which meets in Geneva to-day may determine whether the League of Nations is to disappear altogether, or become a real power for peace, adequately sums up a situation of the utmost gravity. Realizing the ill-effects which have arisen as a consequence of the League's failure to see the ends of justice served in the Manchuria incident, Britain has latterly been taking every possible step to organise collective action by the civilised world to prevent the outbreak of war in Abyssinia. She has been moved, in these efforts, as much by a desire to see an equitable adjustment of the crisis as by an anxiety to uphold the League as an instrument for the preservation of world peace. Attempts to confine the League discussion to one particular incident, instead of courageously dealing with the whole problem of Italo-Abyssinian friction, are really futile. Eventually, the larger issues will have to be faced; nothing is to be gained by shelving consideration now. Following prolonged deliberations on the subject, there recently emerged a definite British policy. This policy is based on the principle that Britain, being a member of the League, has collective obligations for the maintenance of peace, but that she has no individual obligation. The British public expects the Government not to shirk any obligation, subject to the willingness of other nations to undertake theirs, but it does not expect Britain to do anything that other nations are not willing to do. The Government is in line with the public on these points, and as a consequence it has long been realised that the key to the situation is to be found in the attitude of France. At the moment, that attitude has not been definitely disclosed. Up to the present, Britain has not taken the initiative in pressing for any particular form of action at the present stage, but there are indications that the Government believes economic sanctions, if not applied by the Powers outside the League as well as by the League Powers, would be useless. It has been made clear that should the attitude of France render collective action impossible, the Government would seek other means of

COAL FOR CURRENT

Strangely enough, about a century after James Bowman Lindsay, a lonely pioneer, lit his attic room with a crude electrical contrivance and pointed the way to a new means of illumination, the first National Electrical Convention has been held in Great Britain and has organized its forces for an attack upon the problems of the industry. The problems are many, for the industry has expanded rapidly in the intervening years. But the major problems are two: the need for standardisation, and for better distributive system. It is asserted preventing war, but in no circumstances should it place Britain in the position of an international policeman, taking upon herself responsibility for the maintenance of peace at her sole risk. The present week will in the circumstances, be a crucial time not only for Italy and Abyssinia, but also for the whole of Europe. Britain is apparently determined not to let vital issues be side-stepped. The question at the moment is whether she can rally to her side other nations equally anxious that the League shall be re-established on a firmer footing, as the only organised body so far devised for the purpose of preserving peace, or when that objective is impossible of fulfilment, of seeing that unjustified aggression meets with the punishment which it deserves.

VILLAINS WHO LOST AN EMPIRE

By TANCYE LEAN

By adopting the Declaration of Independence 159 years ago the United States of America broke away from the British Empire. Tancye Lean here describes the dramatic situation in British politics which brought about this division of the English-speaking people.

It was the end of the First British Empire. Lord Chatham, old and weak with pain, rose for the last time in the House of Lords. "His Majesty succeeded," came the slow words, "succeeded to an Empire as great in extent as its reputation was unsullied. Seventeen years ago this people was the terror of the world. . . ." But he sagged back limply against his seat. Unconscious, he was carried home to die.

It had been a bad muddle, too stupid, too undignified to deserve that tragic curtain.

Fifteen years previously a spectacular war had been fought which annihilated French power in America, and as a sequel it was proposed that the colonists on the far side of the Atlantic should contribute to the national Exchequer.

In theory, perhaps, that plan was not unreasonable, but its administration was carried out so feebly yet so provocatively that it would have inflamed the independent spirit of a colony of slaves.

George III., whose education in most things was slight ("Was there ever such stuff as Shakspeare?" he asked), had in his youth learnt this at least, that at all costs he must be a King.

Partly by chance and partly by intention, the problem of taxing the colonists became bound up with his ambition as an autocratic monarch. George's method was to rule through Parliament by bribing it, and any attack on the sovereign rights of that body became at once an attack upon himself.

Perhaps, too, he hoped that the quarrel would unite the country behind him. This it never did, and in the eyes of posterity those years of deplorable misgovernment stand out as a struggle between villains and heroes, with the fate of America dependent on the issue.

But the villains—George III., his Prime Minister Lord North, and his lesser henchmen "the King's Friends"—were not good villains. George was too sensible and too commonplace to merit the 20 years of raving lunacy in which he ended his life. Lord North, formerly of Eton and the House, was too good-humoured and too charming an individual to deserve the blindness which closed his eyes for ever.

And "the King's Friends," they were "too obscure, too undistinguished in every way to be worthy of the opprobrium which has been showered on them."

But as villains they did their work; for by their mercenary weakness they made the integrity of Burke and Chatham and Fox stand out in a white blaze of virtue, and if they lost us America, they provided the fertile ground from which the finest speeches in the English language grew up and spread their tendrils of pure oratory.

Let me speak what my soul dictates of the eloquence of Burke, wrote Dr. Parr with pardonable enthusiasm:

of Burke by whose sweetness Athens herself would have been soothed, with whose amplitude and exuberance she would have been enraptured, and on whose lips that prolific mother of genius and science would have adored, confessed, the goddess of inspiration.

As Chatham lay prostrate with gout, his agonies driving him to the borders of insanity, it was this voice of Burke's which spoke out year after year in a vain endeavour to make reason triumph over bribery, and nobility over the ambition of an obstinate King.

These are the arguments of States and Kings. Leave the rest to the schools, for there only they may be discussed with safety. But if impetuously unwise, fatally, you sophisticate and poison the very source of government by urging subtle deductions and consequences odious to those you govern, from the unlimited and illimitable nature of supreme sovereignty, you will teach them by these means to call that sovereignty itself in question.

Late in the day he would rise in the Commons when many members had already left. Then, as the rumour went round that he was speaking, they came hurrying back to listen to him intently, to applaud admiringly, and to vote, in loyalty to the bribes they had received, against him.

The struggle was a heart-breaking one for Burke, but strangely it was North who came nearest to being broken by it, as we can see from those vast tomes of correspondence in which he reported to the King the doings of Parliament.

Lord North to the King,

Lord North has the honour of informing His Majesty that the Committee went through the greatest part of Mr. Burke's Bill to-day, and had in the course of it several divisions, in all of which Mr. Burke was defeated.

Lord North feels himself so weak and unable to go on for any time, that he cannot help reminding His Majesty of the request he has lately had the honour more than once of submitting to His Majesty's goodness.

The King to Lord North,

Lord North cannot doubt that I received with pleasure his account of Mr. Burke's Bill having been defeated before the Committee yesterday.

But he cannot be surprised at the real sorrow occasioned by seeing He persists in the idea that His health will not long permit him to remain in his present situation.

There is no means of letting Lord North retire from taking the lead in the House of Commons that will not probably entail evil. . . . He must be the judge whether he can therefore honourably desert me when infatuated mischief must ensue.

"Infatuated mischief"—that vision of a Miltonic chaos we owe not to

The Very Idea!

WAR IN HONGKONG

Supreme Court Boycotted
By Signor Kelly

By Eddie "Musso" Kelly

Since the newspapers seem to print nothing else these days but news of an impending conflict between Abyssinia and Italy, Eddie Kelly says that he might as well be in the swim... Only he doesn't see why he should cross the world for his copy, when there's heaps of it lying about in Hongkong. So, just for the purposes of this article, he's written a fantastic story of what would happen if international diplomacy, such as that employed in the present dispute, was suddenly applied to Hongkong.

War clouds loomed in Hongkong yesterday, following the reception by M. Litvinoff MacGregor, President of the Supreme Court Council, of a complaint from Emperor Whalesteeth against alleged aggression by Signor Eddie "Musso" Kelly.

Emperor Whalesteeth, who lives in Nathan Road, Kowloon, alleged in his complaint to M. MacGregor that Signor Kelly's house-boy had crossed the harbour from the Peak and had scrapped with his (the Emperor's) house boy in his (the same Emperor's) kitchen.

Signor Kelly denies the allegations.

"The kitchen belongs to me," he said.

It is reported that Signor Kelly is sending some more house boys across to Kowloon to-morrow morning.

The tension between The Peak and Kowloon houseboys is growing.

Feverish activity was witnessed at the Star Ferry this morning when all available space was taken by Signor Kelly's boys, who are en route to the battle front at Kowloon. Cheering crowds of rickshaw coolies lined the Praya to watch the contingents departing by ferry and walla walla.

Emperor Whalesteeth has appealed to Mr. Stanley Burlingham Baldwin to invoke the clauses of the Summary Offences Ordinance dealing with excessive noise at night.

"I can't get a wink of sleep with all those Kelly coolies yawning outside my kitchen every night," he said in an exclusive press interview to-day.

If fighting breaks out between Kowloon and Peak houseboys, Mr. E. Newhouse, who controls all waterways in Hongkong, may prohibit the passage of Kelly coolies along the Mid-Level nullahs. This would force the Peak coolies, unless they used the Peak tram, to proceed to Kowloon around the Repulse Bay Cape.

M. Avenol Hazlerigg, Secretary General of the Supreme Court, announced to-day that M. Litvinoff MacGregor had convened the Court on Wednesday next at the request of Emperor Whalesteeth.

It is considered likely that Signor Kelly will ignore the summons to appear, unless M. MacGregor consents to limit the procedure to dealing with the black eye sustained by Emperor Whalesteeth's boy during last week's kitchen brawl.

Signor Kelly refuses to allow the League Court to discuss the ownership of the kitchen, or Emperor Whalesteeth's allegations that he ultimately plans to seize the whole of the Emperor's house.

Signor Kelly has issued a veiled threat that he will boycott the Supreme Court if it endeavours to extend the scope of next Wednesday's proceedings.

Mrs. Whalesteeth, in exclusive interview with the Telegraph, issued an appeal to the amahs of the Mid Levels to aid the Whalesteeth people in their desire to live in peace and tranquility.

"In the name of the wash amahs and cook amahs of Nathan Road," Empress Whalesteeth's appeal said, "I declare to the noble and kind cook amahs of the Mid Levels that we desire a peaceful solution of the dispute, which is disrupting our lives."

The Daily Press states that the Hongkong Gas Company is considering despatching coolies to the Whalesteeth kitchen in order to protect the company's gas stove.

Mr. Roosevelt Milden, whose army of boys and coolies is one of the greatest in the world, announced a two-point programme to-day aimed at keeping Repulse Bay out of the Kowloon-Peak conflict.

Repulse Bay, New Territory and Mid Level amahs are being evacuated from the Whalesteeth area.

"I don't care what the hospital rules are, young lady. Don't try to tell me how to bathe a baby."

"Glorious Goodwood"

BIG HOLIDAY CROWD ATTENDS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1931. Received July 31, 5.10 a.m.)

London, July 30.

To-day is the beginning of "Glorious Goodwood," which marks the end of the London season.

A large holiday crowd was present on the course, many coming by motor coaches from seaside resorts. The beautiful scenery in and around Goodwood was seen at its best, for the weather was fine and sunny.

Lady Ludlow's Green Oar (7-1) won the Steward's Cup, Captain Field's Almond Hill (100-6) was second, and Sir Victor Sassoon's Cora Deane (100-7) third.

Sammy Wrage rode the winner, this being a lucky last-minute change, as Weston had previously been engaged to ride Green Oar. The winner's time of one minute, twelve seconds, was a record for the course of six furlongs.

The Aga Khan's Mahmood, one of the most promising two-year-olds, won the Richmond Stakes of six furlongs at 2 to 1.—Reuter Special.

BRITAIN TO HOLIDAY

MILLIONS EXPECTED TO TRAVEL

London, July 30.

Railways are making extensive preparation to deal with exceptionally heavy holiday traffic, anticipated for next week-end and the August bank holiday period. The Great Western Railway expects to carry some 3,000,000 passengers between August 2 and 8.

The London and North Eastern Railway will run forty-two additional trains from Liverpool Street and sixteen from King's Cross. Special arrangements are being made by the Southern Railway for visits to Chatham, Portsmouth and Plymouth for Navy Week which will be formally opened at Portsmouth next Saturday by the Duke of York, who will perform the ceremony from the starboard cathead of Nelson's Victory.—British Wireless.

AMERICA'S SYMPATHY

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM FIRST PRINCIPLE

Washington, July 30.

American sympathy towards the exercise of religious freedom and liberty of conscience in all countries is expressed by Mr. William Phillips, Under-Secretary for State, in a letter to Jewish organisations which recently protested to the State Department against alleged anti-Jewish persecutions in Germany.

The letter says that concepts of religious freedom and liberty of conscience for all constitute the most fundamental principles of our civilisation and political faith, adding that the American people are always sympathetic to the maintenance of those concepts in the United States as well as in other nations.—Reuter.

NEW WEAPON OF WAR

LEWIS GUNS WILL BE DISPLACED

London, July 30.

In the House of Commons, Captain Douglas Hacking, Parliamentary Secretary for War, announced that as the result of a trial extending over several years, the War Office has decided to adopt the Czechoslovakian light machine-gun, which will be known as the Vrendle gun, instead of the Lewis gun.

Accordingly, an agreement has been made to use the patent for the manufacture of such machine-guns in Britain.

Captain Hacking added that the Army would continue to use the Vickers heavy machine-guns.—Reuter.

tain Arakida, for the midnight sailing was merely to catch very favourable tides in Shanghai. The ship may be one or two hours late in arriving there.

The only other ship at Kowloon Wharf yesterday when No. 6 typhoon signal was hoisted was the J.C.L. steamer Van Heutze, and she too, was ordered to move away from the wharf. She went into the stream to a buoy.

At 8 o'clock this morning the Douglas steamer Hailan arrived from Swatow, but beyond a fairly heavy swell, those on board had nothing to report of the typhoon. While the ship was in Swatow the typhoon was about 40 miles away, and though all except two other ships remained at anchor in Swatow it was not considered likely that there would be any trouble there.

The Hailan left the port at 4 p.m. yesterday and about the same time the steamer Daviken left, also for Hongkong. The Hupet left for the north, but as the typhoon had crossed onto the land some time before and the Hupet intended making a detour to sea it was not expected that she would encounter anything more than a heavy swell.

Owing to the very bad atmospheric conditions the Hailan was not in wireless communication with Hongkong between the time of her sailing and about midnight, while other ports were not picked up until after 3 o'clock this morning.

THE TYPHOON

The Manila Observatory, reporting at 8.50 a.m. to-day, states that the typhoon is in about 114° Long., 24 Lat., moving west. This position is well inland between Swatow and Amoy, and northwest of Canton.

The No. 6 signal, which was hoisted in Hongkong yesterday afternoon, was lowered at 6.30 this morning.

view at triennial intervals. For the purpose of its immediate sugar policy, the Government did not propose to make any change in the details of the Customs excise or subsidy scales.

The Government had also reviewed the international sugar situation. They believed the various producing countries could only set their sugar industries upon an economic basis by means of an international agreement for the adjustment of supplies to the requirements of world markets. State assistance being diminished as the market conditions improved. They proposed to invite the Governments of the sugar exporting Dominions and Colonies to examine with them the possibility of joint endeavour to reopen international negotiations if there were reasonable prospect of a successful issue.—British Wireless.

that there are fourteen different voltages supplying current in England. This is a big improvement over two decades ago, for London alone then had twenty-four different voltages and fifty different systems. This meant the stocking of a wide variety of apparatus on the part of the dealer, an expensive arrangement for the manufacturer and a hardship for the consumer, especially if he moved from one district to another. The Grid system, which provides a net-work of stations throughout the country, has achieved co-ordination in the matter of generation and transmission.

But much is yet to be desired in the arrangements for distribution. On this question several official and unofficial groups are at work. No time is being lost, for the fact is being borne in upon the world that electricity is at the threshold of a new era. The advantage will lie with those who are in the van. Though Great Britain is denied the natural sources of power which America finds in her valleys and Switzerland in her mountain slopes, she has great veins of coal from which immense power can be derived, and these she intends to exploit to the full.

BRITISH FINANCES

London, July 30. Exchequer returns show that the ordinary revenue to date, excluding self-balancing items, amount to £179,088,183, compared with £180,393,847 at the corresponding date of last year. The total ordinary expenditure, exclusive of self-balancing items, is £228,688,500, against £221,899,804 at the corresponding date of 1934.

HARBOURING CHARGE

YOUNG VILLAGE GIRL LED ASTRAY

"You're a miserable wretch putting all the blame on the girl," said Mr. Wynne-Jones to Chung Kai, 27, unemployed, who was charged at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with harbouring an unmarried girl, but forced the girl to force herself on him against his will. Defendant was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Defendant was charged with having harboured Chin Yut-ngo, 18, at No. 26 Southwall Road, Kowloon, between July 20 and 21, without the consent of her father, Chin Hung.

Inspector K. W. Andrew, of the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, appeared for the prosecution.

Chiu Hung stated in evidence that he was a waiter employed at Dowdell and Company. He had two daughters and a baby son. The girl, Yut-ngo, who was the eldest, was born on the 6th day of the 7th moon in the year of Ping Sun (August 4, 1916). Witness had been looking for a suitable husband for the girl, but had not made any arrangements for her marriage.

Introduced by Friend

Witness was introduced to defendant by a friend at a tea-house a little over a month ago. Defendant had been to witness's house and several times had been there in witness's absence. Witness had seen defendant speaking to the girl, but although he was displeased witness did not say anything. Defendant had never spoken to witness about marriage.

On July 18 the girl disappeared and after she had been gone for two days, witness started a search for her. Witness went to the Ling Nam preserved fruit shop and made enquiries. Defendant was present and when witness asked him if he had seen the girl, he replied "No." The following day witness went to defendant's house at No. 49 Takalung Road, but was told by him and his parents that the girl had not been there.

About 6 p.m. on the third day witness went there again but the defendant and his family advised that they knew nothing. Witness was suspicious of defendant because the girl had only come to Hongkong recently from the country; she did not know anybody and she worked at the same place as defendant.

The fourth time witness went to defendant's house, defendant became abusive and suggested going to the police station, so witness went out and walked about the streets at Kowloon City. In Southwall Road witness saw his daughter on the verandah of one of the houses. He went home and had a discussion and on the following morning he collected some people and went to No. 26 Southwall Road.

Arrested in Cubicle

Witness sent his wife and younger daughter up to the first floor, and after a while they came down and said that the girl was there, so witness went to the police station. Later defendant was arrested in the rear cubicle. The girl was also present. After defendant was arrested the girl was afraid and defendant said to her, "Don't be afraid. I won't have to go to gaol."

Questioned if he had made a statement at the Kowloon City Police Station, that he was willing to let the girl marry defendant provided the marriage was made public and he was given a certain sum of money, witness said that if defendant had been honest he would have agreed to the marriage even if he had no money. Asked why he had later changed his mind regarding the marriage, witness replied that as defendant had not been honest with him and had refused to say anything before the girl was found, he (witness) could not consent to a marriage, it would be "against his conscience."

Defendant alleged that once when he visited complainant at his house, complainant said that his daughter had grown up and that he was willing to let her marry any man so long as he could support her. Defendant had gathered that the girl was "keen" on him, and alleged that she had suggested living with him, but defendant replied saying, "I have no money."

On the 18th the girl came to defendant and told him that she had had a quarrel with her father and that he had run away.

Against His Will

When defendant heard this he said that there was bound to be trouble, but the girl said that she was old enough and that if there was any trouble she would be willing to go to gaol. Defendant further alleged that the girl forced herself upon him against his will.

After evidence had been heard, the Magistrate asked complainant whether he was still opposed to the marriage and complainant replied, "Yes."

On being sentenced defendant cried out, "No, I am not going to gaol" and refused to leave the dock. As defendant was forced to leave the dock the Magistrate remarked, "Quite number of people feel that way, but they have to go."

TWO RUNS

New York, July 30. The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees, leaders of the American Baseball League, together with the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals, the top teams in the National Championship, were all defeated to-day.

The Giants, however, partially retrieved themselves by winning the second match of a double header from the Philadelphia Phillies, to whom they lost the first game by a convincing margin. During the first contest Vergez scored two home runs for the Philadelphia outfit.

The Cardinals had their colours lowered by Cincinnati Reds, to whom they lost by six runs to five.

The Detroit Tigers were playing the St. Louis Browns when they lost their future to-day while the Yankees had as their opponents, the Philadelphia Athletics.

Results of to-day's matches follow:

A. D. Nourse, brought into the team in the place of J. J. Siedle, played an enterprising innings in the Fourth Test match at Old Trafford, where England and South Africa drew, thus leaving the tourists with one victory to their credit with one match to go.

After losing Rowan and Viljoen, the hero of the first innings, Mitchell and Nourse became associated, but although they scored off the loose balls they were disinclined to force the pace. Nourse, however, played an enterprising innings and the pair sent up the 150 made in 195 minutes.

Closest secrecy is being maintained. All that is known is that the boat is of the most unorthodox design.

When completed, it will probably be taken from Southampton to an isolated spot for secret trials.

The challenger would become Miss Britain IV, and would participate in the International race for the trophy at Detroit next year.

Miss Britain III, raced by Mr. Hubert Scott-Paine, was narrowly defeated by Commodore Gar Wood, in Miss America X, in September, 1933. After, on her return to England, smashing the British sea mile record at Poole, Miss Britain III, which cost £25,000, burst into flames and was burned out.

Rowan took 65 minutes for his first fifty. At the close of play the South Africans had 160 for two wickets, both of which fell to Robins. The innings lasted 225 minutes.

HUGE SCORE BY KENT AGAINST SURREY AT THE OVAL

London, July 30.

After scoring a first innings total of 421 runs in their match against Notts at Sheffield in the County Cricket Championship, Yorkshire, who had secured a lead of nearly 200 runs, was unable to force home her advantage and at the close of play had to be satisfied with points for a lead on first innings.

The absence of their best players from Sheffield was probably responsible for their failure to win, particularly as their bowlers, Bowes and Verity, were included among those whose services were required at Old Trafford.

However, the inclusion from the side of such prominent batsmen as Barber and Leyland made it necessary for the county to call upon the reserves and this gave Gibbs an opportunity to reveal his potentialities. The youngster played the best innings of his career and knocked up 167 runs without losing his wicket, beating on the brilliance of Sutcliffe who scored 135 runs for Yorkshire, whose first innings totalled 421.

Yorkshire's score had been made up to a total of 232 which Notts put up in their innings. Of these Keeton contributed 120, his first century of the season. In their second innings Notts had 284 runs for eight wickets when stumps were drawn.

WOOLLEY STILL IN FORM

Frank Woolley, in his 49th year, is still capable of making runs and he demonstrated this at the Oval where Kent beat the home county by ten wickets in a match in which A. Sandham took his benefit.

Two matches are also to be played in the Singles Championship to-day. A. M. Holland, of the Kowloon B.G.C., is down to play E. J. Arculli, of the Craigmawer Club, the Civil Service Police combination in the semi-final round on the Kowloon B.G.C. green.

Arculli, of the Craigmawer Club, the Civil Service Police combination in the semi-final round on the Kowloon Dock R.C., will meet A. Leicestershire also gained a ten-wicket victory over Worcestershire in the match at Leicester, where the visitors made 344 runs in their first innings. Quaife contributed 101 and Martin 124 while Smith took six of the wickets for 77 runs.

Leicestershire replied with a score of 444, Armstrong making 151. Following a second innings collapse by Worcestershire who were dismissed for 157, Leicestershire made 60 runs without losing a wicket.

CHAMPIONS ONLY DRAW

Lancashire, the champion county, failed to reach a decision in their fixture against Hampshire at Southampton and took first innings points in a drawn match.

The Northerners dismissed their opponents for 125 runs, Sibbles taking seven for 48 and then themselves compiled a total of 239.

Hampshire recovered in their second innings and, with McCorkell scoring 150, had 347 runs on the board when

BUT CHAMPION IS

London, July 30. In beating Wilmer Allison in the final match of the Davis Cup Competition Challenge Round at Wimbledon, Fred Perry played spectacular tennis.

Allison served, drove and volleyed grandly for the first three sets, but he was not able to hold Perry after that. It was not until the fourth set that Perry loosened his big guns and then drove and volleyed spectacularly.

After losing the first set he won the second and third, and then fourth when Allison countered with a great stand in an endeavour to retrieve a lost situation.

The American pulled up to 3-5 but then lost two of the most brilliant and longest rallies of the match.

Perry won by 4-6, 6-4, 7-6, 6-3, after H. W. Austin had beaten Donald Budge 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5, by producing the greatest tennis of his career to avenge his Wimbledon defeat.

Appropriately enough A. Sandham, who scored his 100th century recently, took his benefit in the match between Surrey and Kent at the Oval.

MRS. JAMES STILL PLAYING

(By "Veritas".)

Wimbledon, July 5. Half an hour before the men's singles final was due to begin to-day I met Mrs. James, 1933 ladies singles and doubles tennis champion of Hongkong, outside of the main entrance to the Centre Court.

Mrs. James had come up from Paignton to see the Big Match and I found her looking and feeling very fit. She was keenly interested to hear about old friends of the tennis courts in Hongkong and said that it was possible she might return to the Colony some day.

Mrs. James is still playing tennis although she has not yet participated in any open tournament of note. However, she is entering for her club championships in August, where, she said, the standard of play is fairly good, but does not quite reach the best in Hongkong.

She wished to be remembered to all friends in Hongkong and added "The best of luck to the Hongkong ladies in the Interport this year."

Mrs. James is herself an old Interporter. She first played in 1929 and again in 1931. She won the ladies singles title of the Colony in 1933 after twice before reaching the final, and in the same year she carried off the ladies doubles championship.

Her late husband, Mr. C. P. F. James was one time hon. secretary of the Hongkong Lawn Tennis Association.

WOMEN'S SEMI-FINALS AT WIMBLEDON

HELEN JACOBS WINS COMFORTABLY

Mrs. Helen Moody Gives A Great Display

By H. S. SCRIVENER

London, July 5.

Wimbledon's Women's Singles Championship is bound to revert to America, for the finalists who emerged yesterday are Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs.

The last time they met was in the final of the U.S.A. Championship in 1933 when Mrs. Moody retired in favour of Miss Jacobs with the score at 8-6, 8-6, 2-0, against her and was out of tournament play until she came this year to England to compete at a few meetings before trying her luck once more at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Moody is popular with English crowds (apart from her good looks) because of her serene and un-demonstrative behaviour, and her survival to the final yesterday at the expense of another equally popular Wimbledon favourite, Miss Hartigan, of Australia, was hailed with shouts of joy as well as the clapping of hands.

Before this happened we saw Miss Jacobs beat Miss Spirling in one of the tamest semi-finals ever seen on the centre court. Both are players who rely mainly on safety-first and wearing-down tactics. Both liven up the proceedings occasionally by volleying, for both are good volleys, and why they don't do it more often I am quite at a loss to understand.

However, this is entirely by the way. I need only recount that for six games they played the "wait-and-see" game more or less industriously but not too conspicuously well, that after that Miss Jacobs, with the score at 3-3, started to tighten up, her chopping game developed an accuracy which became more and more relentless as time went on, whereas Miss Spirling went to put it quite plainly, more or less to pieces. Which just shows what a funny game lawn tennis is.

PAST HISTORY

I am told that Miss Spirling has not lost a set since Wimbledon last year, and that is possibly the reason why she was seeded No. 2, but it is significant that she lost to Miss Hartigan, who was beaten by Miss Jacobs. Going a little further back, Miss Jacobs and Miss Spirling have each won matches against each other at Wimbledon, and Miss Spirling has been a finalist like Miss Jacobs, but yesterday Miss Jacobs was, on the day, the dominant player. After 3-3 in the first set, she did not lose another game, and for a moment she is just about Mrs. Moody's equal.

Let us now proceed to praise Mrs. Moody once again. She gave us another glorious display of what America's Mrs. Moody can do when she is really confident that she can score winners. She found that Miss Hartigan's second service was vulnerable and proceeded to fire at the chalk in a manner which gave the linesmen the time of their lives, and had an obviously unsettling effect upon Miss Hartigan. Nevertheless, I say with conviction that Miss Hartigan's game was a fine one. She might have said with some propriety, "Don't blame me, blame Miss Moody!"

The difference between the game in which she beat Miss Round and yesterday's battle was that against Miss Round she was able to call the tune more or less often, whereas against Mrs. Moody she was much less frequently able to do so—though she managed it pretty often—and was thus lured into "pressing"—that very expressive golfing phrase—with frequent fatal results.

CURIOS RUN OF PLAY

The run of the play was distinctly curious, and I must confess to being more or less unable to fathom its real significance. With great reluctance, I must, for want of a better excuse, since Miss Hartigan twice needed some sort of an excuse, put it down to the present-day instability of youth. These sententious remarks are prompted by the fact that Miss Hartigan led by 3-1 in the first set and did not get another game in it, and by 2-0 in the second set and did not get another game in that either.

Yet she played championship lawn tennis, though not quite regularly

NEEDLE MATCH TO BE PLAYED

IN "B" DIVISION TENNIS LEAGUE

CHINESE R. C. & SOUTH CHINA

The two leading teams in the "B" Division of the local Lawn Tennis League, the Chinese R.C. and the South China Athletic Association, are due to meet this afternoon on the latter's courts at King's Park.

The Hongkong players are the present leaders of the Division but merely by virtue of having played and won one match more than their Kowloon rivals. The top club won five encounters and secured an aggregate of 41 games against four while the Kowloon side won four matches and six games to two and a half.

The programme for this afternoon is as follows:

Indian R.C. v. Hongkong C.C.
University v. Civil Service
Kowloon C.C. v. Club de Recreio
South China v. Chinese R.C.

LEAGUE TABLE

The league table for the "B" Division is appended:

Lord North did not desert his King. He sat on his post in the House of Commons, leading faithfully the paid agents of the Crown to vote for the continuance of the war with America. He sat there while Jefferson across the Atlantic drew up the Declaration of Independence. He sat there after the defeat of Saratoga with tears streaming down his face at the withering onslaught of Burke and Fox. He sat there until 1782, when Chatham was dead and half the world was mobilised against us and the United States were lost for ever.

And Burke? He lived on till Tory blood flowed through his hardening arteries, he lived to fight as obstinately for war against liberty in France as ever North had fought against freedom in America. He lived to number George III among the warmest of his admirers and to decline from him the title of Lord Beaconsfield.

CHAPTER XXV

Violet Merton was weeding her rosebed when she saw Michael ride by. It was the first time she had caught a glimpse of him since his accident and since Katherine's amazing disclosure. Katherine had been gone two days now. Stanley Merton was taking steps toward the end the girl was now so anxious to attain the consummation of that astonishing marriage ceremony a few weeks before.

"The man must be a most horrible villain," Violet said to herself, pronouncing at the truth about the roots of Dorothy Perkins. "A man doesn't look like one in the least." She was rather ashamed of her earlier enthusiasm for Michael.

The whole thing was definitely queer. First the boy had engaged himself to Sally Moon. That made him appear a fortune hunter. Then he had run off with Katherine on what seemed now a most cruel impulse, only to behave as though the whole thing had never happened at all.

Violet stood up, brushing her earth-stained hands impatiently together. She ought to go to see him, ought to find out how he stood in the matter before Stan turned the affair over to Adrianson, their discreet lawyer friend.

She washed her hands at the sink in the gleaming small kitchen and called to Lavinia who was on the porch, shelling peas for the children's lunch, that she was going to walk up the road a bit. Michael's horse had been headed in the direction of the riding club. And he had been alone. It would be a good time to talk to him.

Violet Merton turned into the lane that ran beside the old shingled house she could see the tall figure of the man she sought, standing in the doorway of the stable. A blue sunburst hung over everything. Yellow leaves here and there drifted down on the muddy paths. There were wild asters and goldenrod blazing in the meadows. Sunlight made a scarlet tapestry on the hillsides.

Michael whirled, his eyes clouded, his muscles taut.

"Good morning," he said without smiling. These days were difficult ones to be got through. Strange people were always coming up to him and being brisk and hearty. He had to find them as best he could.

Something in the wariness of his attitude put Violet off. At once, she was conscious of her errand lacked dignity. It was not for her to meddle in Katherine's affairs. She said rather lamely, "About the horses—for the little girl. She hasn't been riding lately."

Michael bowed. His tone was formal, aloof.

"Do you mind seeing Jerry, my assistant, about that? I haven't been well lately." He passed his hand over his eyes and with another stiff little bow, went into the house.

Jerry was at her elbow. Somehow Violet managed to say something

"What?" in a shortening shout. Sally wanted to know the answer. Really her father was being too hard about this. It made her tired. But since he held the purse strings there was no fighting him. And she wanted a thousand that would put everyone's eye out.

"Nothing." He changed the subject hastily. "You going into town to-day to shop?"

That was always a good way to divert her. Her black eyes sparkled at the thought of trying on clothes, of watching mannequins parade (because this time she was going to the really expensive places and have the very best), and of choosing hats and shoes and cobweb stockings to supplement those already piled in boxes and bags in her room.

"Stan, have you got in touch with Adrianson yet?"

His slow, reassuring voice answered her. "Have an appointment with him at two. Why? Anything happen?"

"She dared not talk over the telephone. Everyone said the exchange operator listened. 'Can you open it?' she asked. "I think I've done something. It may be a hunch. I don't know."

"I don't understand why you want me to do it so quickly," pouted Sally Moon. "Old Ruthie has been calling up every day to see if I've any date to give her. She's anxious to run the story of the wedding, but she doesn't dare tell her who's about it as long as everyone's talking about me. Probably they say 'my reason.' Miss Moon said solemnly. If Sally weren't so wrapped up in her own affairs, he thought, she would be able to figure out the problem for herself. He wanted all the votes he could get for the local trustees and the election was next week. With a big wedding going on and Sally insisting on getting all her flowers and catering things from the city instead of patronising the local tradesmen (who were sure to be antagonised), the election would be certain to go against him. He knew Innock. He hadn't been president of the bank for 20 years without learning a good deal about the way the minds of the villagers worked.

Well, Michael was more tractable since he'd been ill. He really seemed to depend on her those days. She bossed him around—as she hadn't done to before.

Her cousin, Anabel, was coming from Syracuse for the wedding. And Michael had been so vague about providing a best man that Sally had wired Annabel to bring her fiance (expenses paid) to serve. Annabel's young man was a fledgling mining engineer with a brand new diploma. Sally, marrying a title, felt very superior.

Well, Annabel and Joseph would arrive on Tuesday, and they would have a rehearsal Tuesday night. Daddy Moon had agreed to that. The wedding would be on Wednesday, and invitations would go out by hand the day before. It was, Sally told herself, a pretty queer way to do things, but her father had some crazy notion in his mind. It didn't do to argue with him when he was like this.

She longed to shout the news from the rooftops. But she didn't dare. Well, all the old cats who had been so nasty to her would know soon enough. Let them gnash their teeth when. See how they liked it.

She'd snub them if she ever met them on the street.

Another thing she had to do to-day. She had to stop at Tiffany's and choose a platinum band that Michael could pay for later. He didn't want to go into the city, he said. She was having to arrange everything. She had even sent out a tailor who was to measure him for correct morning clothes.

She'd thought of everything. There couldn't possibly be a hitch in the proceedings now. A week from Wednesday she would be Lady Carden.

WHIST AND TOMBOLA

THE R. E. OLD COMRADES HOLD FUNCTION

Another very successful whist drive and tombola was held in the open air at Wellington Barracks on Monday evening last that over one thousand Royal Engineers Old Comrades Association. Twenty-seven tables were occupied by very enthusiastic supporters of the Branch, thus ensuring a completely successful and happy evening's entertainment.

During the interval, when light refreshments were also served, the prizes, eight in all, were very kindly presented by Mrs. Fred Chapman, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was given. A humorous incident occurred when Mr. Chapman presented himself with a large bottle of whisky, which he had brought along with him.

The next whist drive and tombola will be held in Wellington Barracks in the open air on August 12th, and a tombola will be held in the Officers' Dining Room.

who participate in the Easter Service, which is chanted entirely without instrumental accompaniment by voices to whom the ritual is an abiding tradition. Led by a picked group of sixteen men and twelve women, the celebraants, all gathered from the British colonies which dot the Pacific Ocean, joined in creating a high point of religious song, with their rendition of the Easter anthem, "Christus Veneratur," and "Christ Is Risen," gayer chorals and anthems referred to provide the entertainment at an officers' dinner presided over by Prince Charles. Alfred Newman, musical director for Samuel Goldwyn, was largely responsible for the beauty and effectiveness of both services, which finally concluded with the traditional "Alleluia, Alleluia, Alleluia" which sounds to the King's Choristers like a rousing call to battle.

During the interval, when light refreshments were also served, the prizes, eight in all, were very kindly presented by Mrs. Fred Chapman, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was given. A humorous incident occurred when Mr. Chapman presented himself with a large bottle of whisky, which he had brought along with him.

The next whist drive and tombola will be held in Wellington Barracks in the open air on August 12th, and a tombola will be held in the Officers' Dining Room.

BRITISH FLEET

ADMIRALTY REPLY TO
DAILY HERALD

London, July 30.

The Admiralty verbally described the British Herald's story of big hush-hush plans for the rebuilding of the British fleet, under a seven year plan, and at a cost of $150,000,000, as "purely imaginary and based on conjecture," but they have decided to let the matter rest and not make any statement.

The morning papers, however, are of opinion that a large programme of new construction is being planned, though the final decisions may not yet have been made.

The Morning Post in the course of an editorial article says that Great Britain is faced with the necessity of having to lay down eleven new capital ships almost simultaneously.

The New Chronicle asserts that differences of opinion exist within the Government, and the Admiralty is divided regarding the best method of increasing naval efficiency.

Some experts advocate the gradual elimination of the heavy battleships and others favour the rapid building of pocket battleships of the German type.

GIGANTIC DYKE

120,000 MEN FIGHT
THE FLOODS

Peiping, July 30.
Reports submitted by the Red Cross Society authorities say that the flood relief workers' resources have been severely taxed by the calls from the flood areas in Shantung and Honan. In Shantung alone 380 villages are submerged, with thousands of destitutes seeking shelter on dykes, some of which are in a most precarious condition.

Over 1,000 dead bodies have been recovered in Shantung, while a rough estimate shows that about 250,000 are homeless in Shantung and Honan, which have a total population of about 59,288,170 people.

Red Cross officials are busy organising relief camps for the thousands of homeless. Wahsien, Changyun, Lanfeng and Kiao-cheng are the places in the two provinces which have suffered most.

Shantung's anxiety on account of Mei Lake has not been relieved for a three feet rise has been recorded in the past three days.

Gigantic Barrier

After ten days' unceasing work by 120,000 troops and labourers, including thousands of volunteers, the gigantic barrier in northern Kiangsu known as the Huang Ta Dyke is now nearing completion. The dyke has been erected to prevent the Yellow River flooding northern Kiangsu. It is 120 miles long.

Shantung Tragedy

Nanking, July 30.
The tragic revelation that 800 villages were inundated and 2,000 persons drowned in the Chuang-chong district of West Shantung, when the Yellow River overflowed early in July, was brought by an official who arrived at Tsinan with an appeal for assistance, and who said that in the case of one family ten men, women and children tied themselves together to prevent being separated, but all were drowned.—Reuter.

Meishan Lake Rises

Suchow, July 30.
It is reported that the water in the Meishan Lake continued to rise to-day and yesterday.

The big dyke at North Kiangsu is now in a most dangerous position, and all districts in Northern Districts of the Province are threatened with flood if the water continues to rise for another three days.

The populace at Putshien, which is on the South Bank of Meishan Lake, is now extremely anxious and all who live in the areas bordering the Canal fear disaster.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Yangtse Unchanged

Hankow, July 30.
The situation along the Yangtse shows little change, except for a slight rise registered at Wanhsien, Chinkiang and Nanking.

Kialian Mine Flooded

Tientsin, July 30.
The Kialian Mining Administration Mine at Chaokochuang has been partially flooded.

Eleven of the miners are missing and three dead.—United Press.

Reuter confirms this and adds that the pit was flooded by an influx of surface flooding, which affected one level.

Rescue work was carried out with the utmost rapidity and medical service was established at the pit head.

MAINTENANCE CASE

STUDENT HUSBAND ORDERED TO PAY MONTHLY SUM

"I think it is a very unusual state of affairs," said Mr. Thomson at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon when commenting upon a case in which a young Chinese woman, Pang Ting-ha sued her 21-year-old student husband, Chan Ting-kwong, for maintenance.

At the conclusion of the evidence, Mr. Thomson ordered that the husband pay $25 a month to his wife. The mother is to have custody of the newly-born child. No order was made for the costs of the case.

Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr., appeared on behalf of the complainant, while Mr. F. I. Zimmern appeared for the defence.

At a previous hearing, Mr. D'Almada said that the girl, who was married last October, was turned out of the house by her mother-in-law and husband.

At the commencement of yesterday's hearing, Mr. Zimmern cross-examined the complainant as to her husband's appeals for her to return.

In asking His Worship to dismiss the case, Mr. Zimmern said that there was no evidence that the husband had deserted his wife. She left him and he appealed to her to return. She refused to do so.

Dependent on Parents

Mr. Thomson, however, decided that there was a case to answer and the husband, Chan Ting-kwong, then entered the witness box. He said he was a student at the Ying Wah College, Kowloon. The girl was introduced to him and the marriage arranged by his mother. He got on well with his wife who, however, was not sociable. Witness said he had no means of his own and was entirely dependent on his parents.

His parents had promised to look after his wife and himself whilst he was studying. He took a concubine in January, this being arranged by his parents who were willing to pay for her keep.

In answer to Mr. Thomson, he said he received no pocket money, his parents buying him everything. His father had been interested in a medicine shop in Bonham Strand East but was now ruined.

Woo Shih, step-mother of last witness, said she had been married ten years. Her husband was formerly a merchant, but was now independent. For their rents they received $41 per month. Their three shops had been closed down. The family income did not amount to $100 per month. Her son's school fees and other expenses amounted to $10 to $20 per month.

At the conclusion of her evidence, Mr. Thomson decided that the husband pay his wife $25 a month.

LITTLE HOPE OF SETTLEMENT DELEGATES DESPAIR OF AFRICA PEACE BRITAIN WILL GUARD HER INTERESTS

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 31, 8 a.m.)

Geneva, July 30.
Delegates are arriving here to-day prepared to make a despairing effort, when the League of Nations Council meets to-morrow, to avert a war between Italy and Abyssinia.

It is reliably reported that Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Minister for League of Nations affairs and Britain's chief delegate to the Council, has prepared a demand that Italy promise to make no attack upon Abyssinia while negotiations are proceeding.

It is considered significant that the delegates' main hope is the postponing of the collapse of negotiations rather than the solving of the problem.

A United Press staff correspondent, Edward Beattie, on route to Addis Ababa, arrived in Djibouti, French Somaliland, to-day. He found the French troops there unloading artillery and barbed wire from trains which also brought fighting men to the city.

"In the event of continued European reverses in Africa the native tribes might get the idea of attacking the whites everywhere," said a French official. That was the reason for the precautions at Djibouti.

It is reliably learned that during the past five months of preparation for an African campaign, the Italian Government has sent 175 ships through the Suez Canal carrying 176,000 troops, civilians and war supplies—United Press.

PROTECTING INTERESTS
Paris, July 30.

Semi-official Egyptian sources state that the British Government is prepared to send troops into Abyssinia to protect British interests and British nationals there, and particularly the Lake Tsana region, in the event of an Italian offensive.

The Lake is the headwaters of the Blue Nile and is vital to the irrigation of the Sudan.—United Press.

NEAR AGREEMENT
Paris, July 30.

As a result of what is described as "a distinctly useful" hour's talk between Mr. Anthony Eden and M. Pierre Laval, in which they discussed all sides and angles of the Abyssinia dispute, it is learned that the Anglo-French standpoints are much nearer than they were three weeks ago.—Reuter.

ITALY'S WORRIES

(Special to "Telegraph")

Rome, July 30.
A vigorous attack against "charlatans" and "people who spread lies" was made to-day by General Graziani, commander-in-chief of the Italian land forces in Africa.

An order has been issued and spread throughout Eritrea and Italian Somaliland and threatens immediate repatriation to all who complain against the colonial regime.

Meanwhile the High Commissioner of Eritrea, Signor De Bohe, has established a special tribunal in Eritrea and has issued a statement declaring that there is no intention of an Italian occupation of Italian territory. In order to take the land from the natives, Italians were being sent to develop the colony for the good of all.

He has instituted a law which the best works of the Italian people should be protected.

BRITISH OFFICERS VOLUNTEER

WILL FIGHT FOR ABYSSINIA

ORGANISE AT CAPE TOWN

Capetown, July 30.

The Emperor of Abyssinia has asked for the urgent despatch of the British white men who are being recruited here as officers for the Abyssinian Army. Arrangements have been made to equip and rush the enlisted officers by air to Addis Ababa at an estimated cost of £200 per man.

Meanwhile a last effort seems to be being made to win Abyssinia away from her determination to defend her independence. A proposal has been made in Addis Ababa to the Emperor, from undisclosed sources, suggesting a League mandate in Abyssinia, without political powers, but special economic concessions for Italy on the understanding that Abyssinia will be safeguarded from foreign aggression.

The Emperor merely acknowledged the proposal. But he told an interviewer that he did not object to the principle of European influence, provided it remained purely economic. Abyssinia preferred to prosper under European guidance than to remain poor with complete independence.

The proposal to establish a League mandate in Abyssinia is supported by Sir Hesketh Bell, the British expert on colonial constitutions. In a letter to the Times he suggests that the League of Nations should declare a provisional mandate in Abyssinia under which the legitimate complaints and rights of Italy should be satisfied.—Reuter.

VOLUNTEER AIRMEN

Paris, July 30.
Harold Du Berrier, the stunt flier, is organizing a number of American aviators into a fighting unit to assist the Ethiopian forces in action against the Italians.—United Press.

BOMBER GROUNDED

London, July 30.
The Exchange Telegraph service reports from Bucharest that a gigantic German bombing plane had temporarily been grounded there owing to engine trouble. It later flew on to Istanbul, apparently on route to Addis Ababa.—United Press.

WANT NO MANDATE

(Special to "Telegraph")
Rome, July 30.
The Italian Polverilli, in an article in the semi-official Popolo D'Italia, suggests that Abyssinia should fulfil a role similar to Eritrea, which would be an nonentity in Abyssinia.

The Italian point of view is that Italy must have a mandate over Abyssinia, but that the mandate should be given to the League of Nations, which would be an nonentity in Abyssinia.

AMERICA TREADS WARILY

FEARS POLITICAL COMPLICATIONS

DISCREET SILENCE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, July 30.
The Administration is doing its utmost to avoid political reverses due to religious disputes abroad; the United Press Washington correspondent learned to-day.

There are 4,000,000 Jews in the country, 20,000,000 Roman Catholics and probably 2,000,000 Nazis; all of whom might easily be offended. If the United States officially expressed any opinion with respect to the anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic demonstrations in Germany, or the alleged persecution of these groups by Nazis.

America must walk carefully in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, for if she takes sides against Italy the Administration will incur the enmity of 3,000,000 pro-Italians and if she does not show sympathy for Abyssinia she will offend the 11,000,000 negro voters of the Union. All of these elements exert immense political pressure. Their feelings cannot be ignored.

ORIENTAL PROBLEM

Then there is the constant problem of the Oriental farmers in the West Coast country.

The Administration is frankly perplexed with problems of statecraft abroad and political judgment at home; but thus far President Roosevelt and Mr. Cordell Hull, the Secretary of State, have avoided trouble by maintaining a discreet silence.—United Press.

Sir Robert Ho Tung's Soldier Son

GRADUATES AT U.S. COLLEGE

RETURNING TO COLONY

News has just been received from America that Major Shailai Ho, younger son of Sir Robert Ho Tung, has graduated from the famous American Staff College, the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, U.S.A.

Major Ho has had a very extensive military education. After receiving his early education at Queen's College, he went to the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich for a couple of years; after that he completed a tank course at the Artillery School for officers at Larkhill. On his graduation, Major Ho returned to Hongkong for a short while in 1928. Then in the same year he went on to another celebrated military school—one founded by Napoleon—the Ecole d'Application d'Artillerie at Fontainebleau, where three years were spent.

On the completion of his course in France, Major Ho returned to the Far East and was for a while with Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang. Then, in order to widen his military knowledge, Major Ho decided to concentrate on staff work and in 1932 went to Fort Leavenworth, U.S.A., from which he has just graduated.

WHIP OF HUNT

Major Ho was raised to the rank of Major in 1931 and though he is primarily an artillery officer yet his able horsemanship and his popularity with the American officers at Fort Leavenworth resulted in his being elected to the Whip of the Officers' Hunt—one of the coveted honours of the School.

Major Ho has travelled extensively in Europe, America and China. His knowledge of military tactics is of the latest and he returns to the Far East with the best military education which England, France and America have to give.

Major Ho is expected to return to Hongkong in about September. He is at the moment visiting Shanghai and renewing old friendships.

BRITAIN MINING HER PETROL

BIRTH OF PROMISING INDUSTRY

ALREADY GIVES WORK TO THOUSANDS

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 31, 8.15 a.m.)

London, July 30.

Seven and a half million gallons of petrol has been manufactured from British coal by the Imperial Chemical Industries since its hydro-genation plant was put into operation on February 2.

This was the information given to the House of Commons to-day by the Secretary of Mines, Captain H.F.C. Crookshank.

He was replying to a question as to the success of the Imperial Chemical Industries' experiments in the production of petrol from coal.

Delivery to distributors had commenced on April 9, said the Minister, and 6,000,000 gallons had already been marketed.

The petrol is of the first grade of quality and requires no further blending or treatment of any sort and it is anticipated that operations on a full scale, which will produce 45,000,000 gallons annually, will be attained within a few months, he said.

The new industry will employ about 2,000 miners and another 1,000 men in the plants, besides many others in the secondary industries.—Reuter Special.

FURTHER DETAILS

London, July 30.
The Secretary for Mines, Captain Crookshank, in a Parliamentary answer, furnished an interesting statement by Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., showing the progress which has been made in the extraction of oil from coal at its Billingham works. Production began on February 2 this year and since that date a total quantity of seven and a half million gallons of petrol has been manufactured. Delivered to distributors commenced in April, and six million gallons have been marketed to date.

The State Department indicated that the protest would not be made that the plant is in full operation about 2,000 miners and another 1,000 men in the plants, besides many others in the secondary industries.—Reuter Special.

London, July 30.
The German charge d'affaires, Herr Rudolf Leitner, delivered to the State Department to-day Germany's protest over last week's incident on the waterfront, in which three Communists boarded the giant German liner Bremen in New York harbour and tore down and destroyed the swastika flag.

The State Department indicated that the protest would not be made that the plant is in full operation about the treatment of creosote and low-temperature tar, amount to well over half a million tons, representing employment for about 1,250 miners. The number of persons now employed on the plant is about a thousand, and employment in secondary industries will be found for a considerable number of people.—British Wireless.

London, July 31.
Washington, July 31.

The German Government has formally protested to the United States against the demonstrations which occurred in New York on Saturday prior to the sailing of the German liner Bremen.

A thousand Communists, it will be recalled, clashed with the police when making a demonstration in the course of which three men reached the bow of the Bremen and ripped the German flag from the pole, throwing it into the Hudson River.

It is understood that in its protest the German Government does not demand an apology for the incident, for which regret has already been expressed, but the Note requests the State Department to do its utmost to ensure the protection and punishment of those responsible.—Reuter.

Washington, July 30.
The Ways and Means Committee reported favourably on the "Tax the Wealthy". Bill.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives to-day said that the Bill would probably be taken up Wednesday and Thursday.

The Bill provides wide tax amendment. The House voted to pass the Bill by next Saturday so that it will reach the House about August 20.

The schedules of the Bill provide for the yield of $100,000,000 from inheritance tax, $100,000,000 from personal income tax, $60,000,000.

Personal incomes above $15,000, or more than 10 per cent profits will be taxed.

Mr. Lay Yum-sang this morning acquired the motion picture equipment and machinery of the Hongkong Amusements Ltd. at $1,000.

The equipment and machinery were offered in one lot at Messrs. Lummer Bros. auction room.

It has already been advertised that a new syndicate will reopen the theatre on Saturday.

MOBILISATION... FRANCE'S ANSWER TO GERMANY'S QUERY.

their war offices, where grimly practical measures are being taken for the great conflict to come.

St. Petersburg. Midnight.—Pourtalès (German ambassador) to Savonov: "If within twelve hours Russia does not interrupt her mobilization, Germany will mobilize too."

Savonov to Pourtalès: "We will not attack as long as our parlers continue with Austria. It is impossible to demobilize without disarranging our whole military organization."

Vienna.—The Austrian ministry extracts from Emperor Franz-Joseph's order for general mobilization.

Berlin. Noon.—The Kaiser telegraphs King George: "I have just received the official notification that Nicky last night ordered general mobilization. He did not even wait the results of the mediation I am working at, and left me without news. I return to assure the security of my eastern frontiers where strong contingents of Russian troops are already stationed." Proclaims "state of danger of war."

Paris. 11:45 a.m.—The Quai d'Orsay hears from Austria that Austria announces she has no territorial ambition against Serbia provided the war is confined between Austria and Serbia, and has so informed Russia. Philippe Berthelot: "Privately, this seems pretty late." 5 p.m. Viviani being asked by Germany if France will remain neutral, "covering"—or skeletonized—mobilization is ordered. Evening: Jean Jaures, French socialist leader who has been fervently attacking the idea of war, is assassinated in a cafe in the rue du Croissant. Basil Zaharoff, armament king, is promoted Commander of the Legion of Honour.

London.—Sir Edward Grey formally asks France and Germany if they will respect the neutrality of Belgium. France formally answers "Yes." Germany gives an evasive answer, saying that a response would disclose the German plan of campaign.

Brussels. Evening.—The government announces general mobilization.

TO-MORROW: France mobilizes and Germany declares war on Russia.

HUNAN OFFICIALS

DRASTIC PROVINCIAL GOVT. CHANGES

Nanking, July 30.—Several changes in the Hunan Provincial Government have been approved by the Executive Yuan meeting this morning.

General Ho Chien has retained the Governorship, but the Civil Affairs and Finance Commissioners have been replaced and four other members of the Provincial Government dismissed.

The new appointees include Ho Hao-yeo as Finance Commissioner, and Lin Ching as Civil Affairs Commissioner.—Reuter.

This latest picture of the Prince of Wales shows the hair to Britain's throne is beginning to look his 41 years. It was made during a ceremony in connection with the Silver Jubilee.

The south-west peak of Mt. Waddington, 13,200-foot-high mountain in British Columbia, remains unscaled after a dozen attempts with one life lost. But eight members of California's Sierra Club now are making the 13th attempt, flying from Vancouver, B. C., to Knight Inlet, whence they will cross Franklin Glacier, and establish a camp on the 10,000-foot level for a quick dash. Above, beside their plane, the climbers are: Jules M. Eichorn, University of California; D. R. Brower, Berkeley; Jack Reidmuth, San Francisco; W. E. Loomis, Boston; Lester Robinson, Oakland; Don Woods, San Jose; Bob Ratcliff, Berkeley; R. M. Leonard, Oakland. Below is a Royal Canadian Air Force photo of the peak, and the head of Franklin Glacier. Inset is map showing the mountain's location.

Ethnological Exposition

ALL STAGES OF CIVILISATION

PRE-HISTORIC RELICS

Paris, June 28.

Relics of all stages of civilization throughout the world are assembled in Paris to-day for the greatest Ethnological Exposition ever held in Europe. It will open here this week and will continue for three consecutive months.

Stone chicken-coops and gigantic statues from Easter Island, the most mysterious of all Polynesian groups in the Pacific Ocean, will be on display for the first time and will constitute the most important exhibits.

The relics from Easter Island were gathered by the Franco-Belgian Ethnographical Mission, which spent six months research on that remote, volcanic dot off the coast of Chile. This collection, which is being brought to Paris, includes one enormous stone hat, one complete statue, two giant busts and incised reading tablets whose alternating lines are inverted.

WEIRD EXHIBITS

A collection of real heads that have been shrunken by Peruvian Indians to the size of billiard balls although still possessing hair and clearly discernible features will be among the weird exhibits as will samples of the ancient Chinese torture knife of the thousand cuts.

In striking contrast will be an array of colourful dancing costumes, toy and musical instruments used by little-known civilizations in their efforts to play throughout the ages. The most attractive feature of this section promises to be the costumes of the tiny dancing virgins of Cambodia.

War paints and implements of tribal warfare as well as various kinds of armour employed by knights and warriors of the Middle Ages will comprise still another section.

Scientists from all over the world are being invited to the Exposition which will take up several score rooms and halls of the historic Trocadero Museum. It is being held in connection with the 300th anniversary of the founding of the French Museum of Natural History.—United Press.

MURDERED GIRL-BRIDE

FRENCHMAN SENT TO PRISON

FIVE BULLET WOUNDS

Michael Henriot, son of a former French Public Prosecutor, was sentenced to 20 years' penal servitude for the murder of his 19-year-old bride recently at Vannes.

Her body, terribly mutilated by five bullets, was found only a few months after their marriage in their lonely home on the cliffs of Brittany.

The crime was heard, it is alleged, over the telephone by an operator, who, receiving a call, heard articulate cries and the sound of shots.

Henriot is alleged to have insured his wife without her knowledge for about £12,000. The marriage was the result of an advertisement which brought Michael Henriot into touch with Georgette Deglaive.

One of the most poignant moments in the trial was when Mme. Henriot, the aged mother of the accused, cried: "My poor darling one, would that I had never brought you into the world."

Turning to the President, she said—"I have brought him up badly. I have loved him too well. Don't let that fall on his head."

DEAD WIFE'S LETTERS

The dead wife's letters to her sister told how her husband forced her to run naked along the cliff and threatened her with a revolver. They described how she threw saucepans at his head and put salt in his coffee.

Asked to describe the last fatal quarrel, Henriot said that he tried to kiss his wife, but she refused and slapped him. He seized a poker and struck her on the head.

When asked how it was that he fired five times, loading the gun between each shot, the accused replied, "I am so used to shooting that I did it automatically."

Asked if he stood by his confession, Henriot nodded, but denied that the act was premeditated.

He added, "I regret my act. I felt tremors in prison, where I had nightmares."

FINGER PRINT DEVELOPMENT

LATEST DEVICE AGAINST CRIME

New York, July.

New York police have announced that through chemical processes inspired by the Lindbergh baby kidnapping, they can identify fingerprints on cloth. They hope soon to be able to develop prints of criminals who wear gloves.

The almost miraculous process was developed in police department laboratories with the assistance of Dr. E. M. Hudson, specialist in body chemistry who found 500 fingerprints on the ladder used in the Lindbergh kidnapping after police had failed to find even one.

Experts of the department have already been able to prove that fingerprints are left on everything touched, even by a person wearing cloth or leather gloves. Body wax, composed principally of salt and liquids, seeps through the gloves in regular patterns and is imprinted on articles touched as surely as though the bare hand had made the contact.

Success in developing such prints to visibility has depended so far on the texture of the gloves used, but Dr. Hudson and police experts expect soon to make themselves independent of even that factor.

Mead's development of prints on the ladder used in the Lindbergh case and past success of police in locating prints on white cloth was by the use of silver nitrate. The nitrate turns the salt in fingerprints into silver chloride. Silver chloride exposed to light turns black, revealing the whorls and loops of the fingers.

Another process was required, however, for dark cloths and to thwart the crook who uses gloves. The developing agent discovered is calcium sulphite powder, which is brushed over the suspected surface. It adheres like glue to the tiniest bit of body wax, making a print in white. Even now, if a criminal is so careless as to leave his gloves at the scene of the crime, his prints can be taken from inside his pockets.

Success in developing such prints to visibility has depended so far on the texture of the gloves used, but Dr. Hudson and police experts expect soon to make themselves independent of even that factor.

GUINEA PIG BITES AMAHAND GIRL BITTEN BY SPANIEL

A Chinese amah, employed by Mr. Rocha, of 8 York Road, was bitten by a guinea pig owned by her employer. The animal was sent to Mataukok, while the woman received treatment at the hospital.

While Joan Hamilton, aged six years, of 204 Prince Edward Road, was playing in the garden of the residence of Mr. I. S. Wan, 164 Boundary Street, she was bitten by a spaniel dog owned by Mr. Wan. The girl received medical treatment while the dog was removed to Mataukok for observation.

OWNERS SUMMONED

Several dog-owners appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court this morning on summonses for allowing their dogs abroad without muzzles.

Mr. Quark, of 47a Robinson Road, was fined $10 for allowing his white dog in the road without a muzzle on July 8. Defendant denied the offence, saying the dog was in the garden of his house most of the time, but admitted losing sight of it for a minute.

A constable in evidence said he saw the dog in Robinson Road, and, following it, saw it go into No. 47a, the door of the house beingajar.

Miss Russell, of 42 Kennedy Road, was fined $6 on admitting a summons of allowing her dog abroad without a muzzle on July 19. A representative appeared for defendant.

K. Y. Chan, of St. Joseph's Building, Robinson Road, was also fined on admitting a summons of allowing a black and white terrier bitch abroad without a muzzle. A representative said the dog followed the servants out of the house in the early morning.

MORE BANISHEES CHARGEDSUSPICIOUS CASE ADJOURNED

To consider whether the man should be simply sent back to Canton, or re-banished, Mr. Schofield, at the Central Police Court this morning, remanded Ho Tak, unemployed, for three days in police custody, on a charge of returning from banishment.

Detective-Sergeant Kinner stated that the detective who arrested the man was given information by a man who was not his usual informer. There was a very strong suspicion that the man who gave the prisoner away was himself the man who brought the defendant down from the country, and it was quite possible that the defendant might have been enticed under some pretext. The informer was missing.

On a similar charge, Mak Fuk, unemployed, was sent to prison for nine months with hard labour.

Returning from banishment before his period of 10 years had expired, Wong Sun, aged 26, was sentenced to six months' hard labour when brought before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning. Defendant was banished from the Colony on September 18, 1933.

Another banisher, Chan Wah, aged 76, who was banished for 10 years on May 9 this year, was sentenced to four months' hard labour when he pleaded guilty to returning. Defendant said he could not find a living in Canton, so returned to the Colony.

CAR CLEANER CHARGEDIGNORED ORDERS OF A. A. MAN

For failing to comply with orders given to him by an authorised employee of the Hongkong Automobile Association, Leung Hung-pui, 20, a motor car cleaner, was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning and was bound over in the sum of $15 for six months.

Mr. C. H. Dodson, supervisor of the Hongkong Automobile Association, appeared as the complainant and stated that defendant had frequently been warned not to clean cars on the car parks without permission.

Giving evidence, Wong Leung, patrolman, stated that on Monday last about 11 a.m. he saw defendant washing a car on the car park near the Peninsula Hotel. Witness told defendant to go away, and he did so, but returned again at noon. Witness again sent the man away, and he returned again between 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. This time defendant was seen by Mr. Dodson and was arrested.

Mr. Dodson stated that he was passing through the car park at Middle Road when he saw defendant cleaning car No. 3447, so he arrested him. Witness had seen defendant before and had offered him employment in the Association, through an Indian patrolman.

Addressing defendant the Magistrate said:—"As you have already spent two nights in gaol, I gather you know now that you are not to do this."

MOTHER'S FRIEND IN MANY LANDS

Mothers in many lands rely implicitly on Baby's Own Tablets to put matters quickly right whenever their little ones show signs of ill-health, for they have learned from experience that there is nothing to surpass the gentle efficacy of these tablets.

The illustration shows a woman with dark hair, wearing a light-colored blouse, holding a small child in her arms. The child is looking towards the viewer. The woman is smiling slightly. The background is plain and light.

Involving none of the fume and bother generally associated with the giving of medicine to children, they are so pleasant tasting, Baby's Own Tablets have a mild laxative action, and correct health troubles by removing the cause which often lies in some slight derangement of the stomach or bowels.

The prescription of a medical child specialist, these tablets are a proven specific in cases of constipation, infantile indigestion, and colic; they also reduce feverishness, correct diarrhoea, relieve croup and colds, immediately ease the pains of teething, expel worms, soothe the nerves and induce sound sleep in a natural way. From chemists everywhere you can obtain this ideal children's health safeguard.

BRITAIN'S STAND

The assertion that the session of the Council which meets in Geneva to-day may determine whether the League of Nations is to disappear altogether, or become a real power for peace, adequately sums up a situation of the utmost gravity. Realising the ill-effects which have arisen as a consequence of the League's failure to see the ends of justice served in the Manchurian Incident, Britain has latterly been taking every possible step to organise collective action by the civilised world to prevent the outbreak of war in Abyssinia. She has been moved, in these efforts, as much by a desire to see an equitable adjustment of the crisis as by an anxiety to uphold the League as an instrument for the preservation of world peace. Attempts to confine the League discussion to one particular incident instead of courageously dealing with the whole problem of Italo-Abyssinian friction, are really futile. Eventually, the larger issues will have to be faced; nothing is to be gained by shelving consideration now. Following prolonged deliberations on the subject, there recently emerged a definite British policy. This policy is based on the principle that Britain, being a member of the League, has collective obligations for the maintenance of peace, but that she has no individual obligation. The British public expects the Government not to shirk any obligation, subject to the willingness of other nations to undertake theirs, but it does not expect Britain to do anything that other nations are not willing to do. The Government is in line with the public on these points, and as a consequence it has long been realised that the key to the situation is to be found in the attitude of France. At the moment, that attitude has not been definitely disclosed. Up to the present, Britain has not taken the initiative in pressing for any particular form of action at the present stage, but there are indications that the Government believes economic sanctions, if not applied by the Powers outside the League as well as by the League Powers, would be useless. It has been made clear that should the attitude of France render collective action impossible, the Government would seek other means of

COAL FOR CURRENT

Strangely enough, about a century after James Bowman Lindsay, lonely pioneer, lit his attic room with a crude electrical contrivance and pointed the way to a new means of illumination, the first National Electrical Convention has been held in Great Britain and has organized its forces for an attack upon the problems of the industry. The problems are many, for the industry has expanded rapidly in the intervening years. But the major problems are two: the need for standardisation and for a better distributive system. It is asserted preventing war, but in no circumstances should it place Britain in the position of an international policeman, taking upon herself responsibility for the maintenance of peace at her sole risk. The present week will, in the circumstances, be a crucial time not only for Italy and Abyssinia, but also for the whole of Europe. Britain is apparently determined not to let vital issues be side-stepped. The question at the moment is whether she can rally to her side other nations equally anxious that the League shall be re-established on a firmer footing, as the only organised body so far devised for the purpose of preserving peace, or, when that objective is impossible of fulfilment, of seeing that unjustified aggression meets with the punishment which it deserves.

VILLAINS WHO LOST
AN EMPIRE

By TANCYE LEAN

By adopting the Declaration of Independence 150 years ago the United States of America broke away from the British Empire. Tancye Lean here describes the dramatic situation in British politics which brought about this division of the English-speaking people.

It was the end of the First British Empire. Lord Chatham, old and weak with pain, rose for the last time in the House of Lords. "His Majesty, succeeded," came the slow words, "succeeded to an Empire as great in extent as its reputation was unsullied. Seventeen years ago this people was the terror of the world." But he sagged back limply against his seat. Unconscious, he was carried home to die.

It had been a bad muddle, too stupid, too undignified to deserve that tragic curtain.

Fifteen years previously a spectacular war had been fought which annihilated French power in America, and as a sequel it was proposed that the colonists on the far side of the Atlantic should contribute to the national Exchequer.

In theory, perhaps, that plan was not unreasonable, but its administration was carried out so feebly yet so provocatively that it would have inflamed the independent spirit of a colony of slaves.

George III, whose education in most things was slight ("Was there ever such stuff as Shakespeare?" he asked), had in his youth learnt this at least, that at all costs he must be a King.

Partly by chance and partly by intention, the problem of taxing the colonists became bound up with his ambition as an autocratic monarch. George's method was to rule through Parliament by bribing it, and any attack on the sovereign rights of that body became at once an attack upon himself.

Perhaps, too, he hoped that the quarrel would unite the country behind him. This it never did, and in the eyes of posterity those years of abominable misgovernment stand out as a struggle between villains and heroes, with the fate of America dependent on the issue.

But the villains—George III, his Prime Minister Lord North, and his lesser henchmen "the King's Friends"—were not good villains. George was too sensible and too commonplace to merit the 20 years of raving lunacy in which he ended his life. Lord North, formerly of Eton and the House, was too good-humoured and too charming an individual to deserve the blindness which closed his eyes for ever. And "the King's Friends," they were too obscure, too undistinguished in every way to be worthy of the opprobrium which has been showered on them.

But as villains they did their work; for by their mercenary weakness they made the integrity of Burke and Chatham and Fox stand out in a white blaze of virtue, and if they lost us America, they provided the fertile ground from which the finest speeches in the English language grew up and spread their tendrils of pure oratory.

Let me speak what my soul dictates of the eloquence of Burke, wrote Dr. Parr with pardonable enthusiasm:

of Burke by whose sweetness Athens herself would have been soothed, with whose amplitude and exuberance she would have been enraptured, and on whose lips that prolific mother of genius and science would have adored, confessed, the goddess of Inspiration.

As Chatham lay prostrate with gout, his agonies driving him to the borders of insanity, it was this voice of Burke's which spoke out year after year in a vain endeavour to make reason triumph over bribery, and nobility over the ambition of an obstinate King.

These are the arguments of States and Kingdoms. Leave the rest to the schools, for there only they may be discussed with safety. But if intemperately unwise, fatally, you sophisticate and poison the very source of government by urging subtle deductions and consequences odious to those you govern, from the unlimited and illimitable nature of supreme sovereignty, you will teach them by these means to call that sovereignty itself in question.

Late in the day he would rise in the Commons when many members had already left. Then, as the rumour went round that he was speaking, they came hurrying back to listen to him intently, to applaud admiringly, and to vote, in loyalty to the bribes they had received, against him.

The struggle was a heart-breaking one for Burke, but strangely it was North who came nearest to being broken by it, as we can see from those vast tomes of correspondence in which he reported to the King the doings of Parliament.

Lord North to the King.
Lord North has the honour of informing His Majesty that the Committee went through the greatest part of Mr. Burke's Bill to-day, and had in the course of it several divisions, in all of which Mr. Burke was defeated.

Lord North feels himself so weak and unable to go on for any time, that he cannot help reminding His Majesty of the request he has lately had the honour more than once of submitting to His Majesty's goodness.

The King to Lord North.
Lord North cannot doubt that I received with pleasure his account of Mr. Burke's Bill having been defeated before the Committee yesterday.

But he cannot be surprised at the real sorrow occasioned by seeing He persists in the idea that His health will not long permit him to remain in his present situation. . . . There is no means of letting Lord North retire from taking the lead in the House of Commons that will not probably entail evil. . . . He must be the judge whether he can therefore honourably desert me when infatuated mischief must ensue.

WAR IN HONGKONG

Supreme Court Boycotted
By Signor Kelly

By Eddie "Muso" Kelly

Since the newspapers seem to print nothing else these days but news of an impending conflict between Abyssinia and Italy, Eddie Kelly has decided that he might as well be in the swim. Only he doesn't see why he should cross the world for his copy, when there's heaps of it lying about in Hongkong. So, just for the purposes of this article, he's written a fantastic story of what would happen if international diplomacy, such as that employed in the present dispute, was suddenly applied to Hongkong.

War clouds loomed in Hongkong yesterday, following the reception by M. Litvinoff MacGregor, President of the Supreme Court Council, of a complaint from Emperor Selassie Whalesooth against alleged aggression by Signor Eddie "Muso" Kelly.

Emperor Whalesooth, who lives in Nathan Road, Kowloon, alleged in his complaint to M. MacGregor that Signor Kelly's house-boy had crossed the harbour from the Peak and had scraped with his (the Emperor's) house boy in his (the same Emperor's) kitchen.

Signor Kelly denies the allegations.

"The kitchen belongs to me," he said.

It is reported that Signor Kelly is sending some more house boys across to Kowloon to-morrow morning.

The tension between The Peak and Kowloon houseboys is growing.

Feverish activity was witnessed at the Star Ferry this morning when all available space was taken by Signor Kelly's boys, who are en route to the battle-front at Kowloon. Cheering crowds of rickshaw coolies lined the Praya to watch the contingents departing by ferry and walla walla.

Emperor Whalesooth has appealed to Mr. Stanley Burlingham Baldwin to invoke the clauses of the Summary Offences Ordinance dealing with excessive noise at night.

"I can't get a wink of sleep with all those Kelly coolies yowling outside my kitchen every night," he said in an exclusive press interview to-day.

If fighting breaks out between Kowloon and Peak houseboys, Mr. E. Newhouse, who controls all waterways in Hongkong, may prohibit the passage of Kelly coolies along the Mid-Level nullah nullahs. This would force the Peak coolies, unless they used the Peak tram, to proceed to Kowloon around the Repulse Bay Cape.

M. Averol Hazlrigg, Secretary General of the Supreme Court, announced to-day that M. Litvinoff MacGregor had convened the Court on Wednesday next at the request of Emperor Whalesooth.

It is considered likely that Signor Kelly will ignore the summons to appear, unless M. MacGregor consents to limit the procedure to dealing with the black eye sustained by Emperor Whalesooth's boy during last week's kitchen brawl.

Signor Kelly refuses to allow the League Court to discuss the ownership of the kitchen, or Emperor Whalesooth's allegations that he ultimately plans to seize the whole of the Emperor's house.

Signor Kelly has issued a veiled threat that he will boycott the Supreme Court if it endeavours to extend the scope of next Wednesday's proceedings.

Mrs. Whalesooth, in exclusive interview with the Telegraph, issued an appeal to the amahs of the Mid Levels to aid the Whalesooth people in their desire to live in peace and tranquillity.

"In the name of the wash amahs and cook amahs of Nathan Road," Empress Whalesooth's appeal said, "I declare to the noble and kind cook amahs of the Mid Levels that we desire a peaceful solution of the dispute, which is disrupting our lives."

The Daily Press states that the Hongkong Gas Company is considering despatching coolies to the Whalesooth kitchen in order to protect the company's gas stove.

Mr. Roosevelt Milman, whose army of boys and coolies is one of the greatest in the world, enunciated a two-point programme to-day, aimed at keeping Repulse Bay out of the Kowloon-Peak conflict.

Repulse Bay, New Territory and Mid-Level amahs are being evacuated from the Whalesooth areas.

"I don't care what the hospital rules are, young lady. Don't try to tell me how to bathe a baby!"

European Lost Off Ferryboat

FRUITLESS SEARCH IN HARBOUR

ELUDES WOULD-BE RESCUERS

A distressing tragedy occurred in the harbour shortly after midnight, when Mr. Dave Wolff, of the Gloucester Hotel orchestra, jumped overboard, all efforts to save him proving in vain. The body has not yet been recovered.

Mr. Wolff was a passenger on the ferry launch which left Hongkong at 12.15 a.m., and when the boat had reached the middle of the harbour he was seen to leave his seat suddenly, divest himself of his coat, climb over the railings, and leap into the harbour. A Portuguese passenger, sensing Mr. Wolff's intention, made efforts to drag him back, but these were without avail.

FRUITLESS EFFORTS

Immediately the incident occurred, the ferry-boat put back and searched the vicinity, and a diver named Cheung Hung jumped in after Mr. Wolff, but on getting within six feet of him Mr. Wolff sank. Later, other ferryboats appeared on the scene, and, with the aid of searchlights, the search was continued, but without success.

At first, the identity of the missing man was unknown, but later it was established from the fact that in a grey striped tweed coat which he left on the ferry-boat there was found a wallet containing eight visiting cards bearing Mr. Wolff's name, together with a receipt made out in Mr. Wolff's favour. The wallet also contained a visiting card bearing the name of Norval U. Norval, of the s.s. Broviken.

NATURALISED, BRITON

The late Mr. David James Wolff was born in Holland, of Jewish extraction, and was a naturalised British subject. He was 39 years of age and leaves a widow and a small daughter. He was formerly in Shanghai and then went to Borneo from where he came to Hongkong three months ago. He organised the popular Gloucester Trio, being the cellist. He formerly lived in Kowloon Tong and only yesterday moved to a new residence in Hankow Road.

When seen by a Telegraph reporter this morning, the Manager of the Gloucester Hotel could throw no light on the tragedy. He stated that "Mr. Wolff left a lot of things addressed to his wife in the office on the ground floor."

policy, the Government did not propose to make any change in the details of the Customs excise or subsidy scales.

The Government had also reviewed the international sugar situation. They believed the various producing countries could only set their sugar industries upon an economic basis by means of an international agreement for the adjustment of supplies to the requirements of world markets, State assistance being diminished as the market conditions improved. They proposed to invite the Governments of the sugar exporting Dominions and Colonies to examine with them the possibility of joint endeavour to reopen international negotiations if there were a reasonable prospect of a successful issue.—British Wireless.

BRITAIN TO HOLIDAY

MILLIONS EXPECTED TO TRAVEL

London, July 30. Railways are making extensive preparation to deal with exceptionally heavy holiday traffic anticipated for next week-end and the August bank holiday period. The Great Western Railway expects to carry some 3,000,000 passengers between August 2 and 8.

The London and North Eastern Railway will run forty-two additional trains from Liverpool Street and sixteen from King's Cross. Special arrangements are being made by the Southern Railway for visits to Chatham, Portsmouth and Plymouth for Navy Week, which will be formally opened at Portsmouth next Saturday by the Duke of York, who will perform the ceremony from the starboard cabin of the Victory.—British Wireless.

DANGEROUS TAXATION OPPOSED

MINERS MIGHT BE RUINED

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, July 30.

Congressional delegates from the mining states to-day started a hastily planned fight against the provisions of President Roosevelt's Tax Bill which, they contend, would mean ruin for the Western gold and silver miners if enacted.

The fight started through Representative James G. Scrugham, Democrat of Nevada, discovering that under the present provisions of the Bill, the Government, through the Excess Profits Tax, could seize a large percentage of the net revenue obtained through the development of any vein, pocket or placer deposit of gold or silver.

Representative Scrugham promptly asked the Ways and Means Committee to consider the question again prior to reporting on the Bill to the House of Representatives.

He was, however, told that it was too late.

He therefore called a conference of the silver bloc in the House this morning to formulate plans for amendments identical with those which were inserted in the Revenue Act of 1918.

On these amendments exempt from Excess Profits Tax that portion of any mining corporation's income which is derived from the mining of gold or silver.—United

COLIJN STILL AT HELM

REFORMS HOLLAND'S CABINET

The Hague, July 30.

Dr. Colijn, who recently resigned the Premiership, has succeeded in forming a new Cabinet on a broad basis, as requested by Queen Wilhelmina.

The Cabinet includes new Ministers belonging to the Catholic and Liberal Democratic Parties.

The Catholic Parliamentary group, has decided to support the new Government.

It is expected that the Lower House will be asked to reconsider the Economic Bill, which led to the downfall of the last Government.—Reuter.

The new Cabinet comprises Dr. Colijn, who is Minister for Colonies and temporarily, Minister of Defence; Jhr. A. C. D. de Graeff, Foreign Minister; Dr. E. H. van Schalk, Minister of Justice; Dr. J. A. de Wilde, Minister of Interior; Dr. P. J. Oud, Minister of Finance; Dr. L. N. Deckers, Minister for Agriculture; all of them ministers in the last Cabinet. The new ministers are: Dr. Slingerberg, Minister for Social Affairs, Heer Geelissen, Minister for Commerce and Industry, and Heer de

New G.O.C. Appointed For China

MAJOR-GENERAL A.W. BARTHOLOMEW

SPLENDID RECORD

London, July 30. The War Office announces that Major-General Arthur Wollaston Bartholomew, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O., who has been Inspector of Royal Artillery at the War Office since 1933, has been appointed General Officer Commanding the British Troops in China, in succession to Lieutenant-General O. C. Borrett. The appointment takes effect towards the end of this year.

Major-General Bartholomew, who was born on May 5, 1878, was educated at Marlborough and at Trinity College, Oxford. He entered the Royal Artillery in 1900, was promoted Captain in 1911, Major in 1914, Lieutenant-Colonel in 1927, Colonel in 1929, and Major-General in 1932.

In the Great War, he was mentioned in despatches six times, and received the C.M.G., the C.B.E. and D.S.O. decorations.

He was appointed Instructor of the Senior Officers' School at Sheerness in 1929-30, and commanded the Royal Artillery, Fourth Division, from 1930 to 1932. He was appointed an A.D.C. to the King in 1931.

Major-General Bartholomew married in 1906 Helen May Ethel, daughter of the late General W. W. Anderson.—Reuter.

BRITISH FINANCES

London, July 30. Exchequer returns show that the ordinary revenue to date, excluding self-balancing items, amount to £179,988,183, compared with £180,393,847 at the corresponding date of last year.

The total ordinary expenditure, exclusive of self-balancing items, at the corresponding date of 1934, £238,638,500, against £231,899,894 at the corresponding date of 1934.—British Wireless.

RADIO-PHONE SERVICE

London, July 30. The Post Office announces the inauguration on August 1 of a radio-telephone service between Great Britain and Ireland.—British Wireless.

The Catholic Parliamentary group, has decided to support the new Government.

It is expected that the Lower House will be asked to reconsider the Economic Bill, which led to the downfall of the last Government.—Reuter.

WELL RECEIVED

The Hague, July 30. News of the personnel of the new Dutch Cabinet has been well received.

The only one of the ministers who has not served in some Cabinet is Dr. Slingerberg, Liberal-Democrat member of the First Chamber. The Ministry as before consists of anti-revolutionaries, Roman Catholics, Christian Historical Party and Liberal-Democrats.

It is believed that after passing a vote of confidence the Chamber will adjourn for the summer recess.—Reuter.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

THE GOLDEN AGE IS BEFORE US, NOT BEHIND US.—Simon.

A dinner dance will be held at Repulse Bay Hotel this evening. The last bus leaves Repulse Bay at 1 a.m.

Local estate to the value of $1,300 has been left by Mr. Pedro Fernando da Cruz Prata, late of 10 Hart Avenue, Kowloon, who died on December 12, 1934. Letters of administration have been granted to the widow, Maria Jose Gomes Prata.

Three weeks' hard labour was passed upon Chan Fai, 27, unemployed, when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for unlawful possession of a motor car pump at Shek Lung Street near Canton Road yesterday. Defendant said he took the pump from the Lai Cheung engineering shop, the master of which had run away to evade paying rent. He further alleged that the folks and the master of the shop had told him to go to the shop and take away any odd scraps of iron to sell.

Fond loitering on the stairway of No. 171 Tung-Choi Street at 2 a.m. yesterday, Chan Fong, 25, unemployed, was brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning and sentenced to six weeks' hard labour. Detective-Sergeant Allen said defendant was seen by a Chinese detective on the stairway. The detective lived at that address and was going home. He asked defendant what he was doing there and the man said he was looking for a man named Chan Kowal. Defendant was asked which flat the man lived on and he pointed to the flat of which the detective was the principal tenant. The detective told defendant that such man lived there and arrested him.

The London and North Eastern Railway will run forty-two additional trains from Liverpool Street and sixteen from King's Cross. Special arrangements are being made by the Southern Railway for visits to Chatham, Portsmouth and Plymouth for Navy Week, which will be formally opened at Portsmouth next Saturday by the Duke of York, who will perform the ceremony from the starboard cabin of the Victory.—British Wireless.

STEAMERS PREPARED FOR GALE

TYphoon Alarms in Colony

SHIPS QUIT DOCKS

London, July 30. Early risers this morning were surprised to see the N.Y.K. liner Chichibu Maru steaming up the harbour. The ship was scheduled to leave Hongkong for America at midnight.

Actually the Chichibu Maru spent the night in Kowloon Bay, leaving Kowloon Wharf at 6 p.m. yesterday.

This morning Captain Y. Arakida stated that he would have preferred to leave Hongkong altogether yesterday evening and meet the possible typhoon in the open sea, or more probably go round it. It was impossible to get the passengers aboard in such short notice, however, and he was forced to return. This morning the ship berthed again at Kowloon as it was considered too inconvenient to take so many passengers down to Kowloon Bay in launches. She sailed at noon today.

There will be no delay in the ship's schedule caused by the 12-hour extra stay here, said Captain Arakida, for the midnight sailing was merely to catch very favourable tides in Shanghai.

The ship may be one or two hours late in arriving there.

The only other ship at Kowloon Wharf yesterday when No. 6 typhoon signal was hoisted was the J.C.I.L. steamer Van Heutsz, and she too, was ordered to move away from the wharf. She went into the stream to a buoy.

At 8 o'clock this morning the Douglas steamer Haitan arrived from Swatow, but beyond a fairly heavy swell, those on board had nothing to report of the typhoon.

While the ship was in Swatow the typhoon was about 40 miles away, and though all except two other ships remained at anchor in Swatow, it was not considered likely that there would be any trouble there.

The Haitan left the port at 4 p.m. yesterday and about the same time the steamer Davyken left, also for Hongkong. The Hupen left for the north, but as the typhoon had crossed onto the land some time before and the Hupen intended making a detour to sea it was not expected that she would encounter anything more than a heavy swell.

Owing to the very bad atmospheric conditions the Haitan was not in wireless communication with Hongkong between the time of her sailing and about midnight, while other ports were not picked up until after 3 o'clock this morning.

THE TYPHOON

The Manila Observatory, reporting at 8.50 a.m. to-day, states that the typhoon is in about 11° Long., 24° Lat., moving west. This position is well inland between Swatow and Amoy, and northwest of Canton.

The No. 6 signal, which was hoisted in Hongkong yesterday afternoon, was lowered at 6.30 this morning.

that there are fourteen different voltages supplying current in England. This is a big improvement over two decades ago, for London alone then had twenty-four different voltages and fifty different systems.

This meant the stocking of a wide variety of apparatus on the part of the dealer, an expensive arrangement for the manufacturer and a hardship for the consumer, especially if he moved from one district to another. The Grid system, which provides a network of stations throughout the country, has achieved co-ordination in the matter of generation and transmission.

But much is yet to be desired in the arrangements for distribution. On this question several official and unofficial groups are at work. No time is being lost, for the fact is that being borne in upon the world that electricity is at the threshold of a new era. The advantage will lie with those who are in the van.

Though Great Britain is denied the natural sources of power, which America finds in her valleys and Switzerland in her mountain slopes, she has great veins of coal from which immense power can be derived, and these she intends to exploit to the full.

An unemployed man, Lo Hop-ping, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning charged with unlawful possession of two radiator caps at Hollywood Road and Queen's Street, Chan Muk, unemployed, was bound over in a sum of $50 for one year. Inspector Smith stated that defendant was arrested by the police, carrying the wire wrapped up in cloth. Defendant told the watchman he had taken it from the contractors.

New York, July 30. The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees, leaders of the American Baseball League, together with the New York Giants and the St. Louis Cardinals, the top teams in the National Championship, were all defeated to-day.

The Giants, however, partially retrieved themselves by winning the second match of a double header from the Philadelphia Phillies, to whom they lost the first game by a convincing margin. During the first contest Vergez scored two home runs for the Philadelphia outfit.

The Cardinals had their colours lowered by Cincinnati Reds, to whom they lost six runs to five.

The Detroit Tigers were playing the St. Louis Browns when they lost their fixture to-day while the Yankees had as their opponents, the Philadelphia Athletics.

Results of to-day's matches follow:

AT MANCHESTER

London, July 30.

A. D. Nourse, brought into the team in the place of I. J. Siedle, played an enterprising innings in the Fourth Test match at Old Trafford, where England and South Africa drew, thus leaving the tourists with one victory to their credit with one match to go.

After England had declared their second innings closed at 231 for six wickets, the South Africans made no attempt to score the runs, requiring, as they did, 271 to win in three hours and 45 minutes.

After losing Rowan and Viljoen, the hero of the first innings, Mitchell and Nourse became associated, but although they scored off the loose balls they were disinclined to force the pace. Nourse, however, played an enterprising innings and the pair sent up the 150 made in 105 minutes.

Nourse took 55 minutes for his first fifty. At the close of play the South Africans had 100 for two wickets, both of which fell to Robins. The innings lasted 225 minutes.

Scores: ENGLAND—1ST. INNS. 357; SOUTH AFRICA—1ST. INNS. 318; ENGLAND—2ND. INNS.

WOMEN'S SEMI-FINALS AT WIMBLEDON

HELEN JACOBS WINS COMFORTABLY

Mrs. Helen Moody Gives A Great Display

By H. S. SCRIVENER

London, July 5.

Wimbledon's Women's Singles Championship is bound to revert to America, for the finalists who emerged yesterday are Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs.

The last time they met was in the final of the U.S.A. Championship in 1933 when Mrs. Moody retired at 8-6, 6-3-0, against her and was out of tournament play until she came this year to England to compete at a few meetings before trying her luck once more at Wimbledon.

Mrs. Moody is popular with English crowds (apart from her good looks) because of her serene and un-demonstrative behaviour, and her survival to the final yesterday at the expense of another equally popular Wimbledon favourite, Miss Hartigan, of Australia, was hailed with shouts of joy as well as the clapping of hands.

Before this happened we saw Miss Jacobs beat Mine. Sperling in one of the tamest semi-finals ever seen on the centre court. Both are players who rely mainly on safety-first and wearing-down tactics. Both liven up the proceedings occasionally by volleying, for both are good volleyers, and why they don't do it more often I am quite at a loss to understand.

However, this is ennobled by the way. I need only recount that for six games they played the "wait-and-see" game more or less industriously but not too conspicuously well, that after that Miss Jacobs, with the score at 3-3, started to tighten up her chopping game and developed an accuracy which became more and more relentless as time went on, whereas Mine. Sperling went to put it quite plainly, more or less to pieces. Which just shows what a funny game lawn tennis is.

PAST HISTORY

I am told that Mine. Sperling has not lost a set since Wimbledon last year, and that is possibly the reason why she was seeded No. 2, but it is significant that she then lost to Miss Hartigan, who was beaten by Miss Jacobs. Going a little further back, Miss Jacobs and Mine. Sperling have each won matches against each other at Wimbledon, and Mine. Sperling has been a finalist like Miss Jacobs, though Miss Jacobs was, on that day, the dominant player. After 8-3 in the first set, she did not lose another game, and for serenity she is just about Mrs. Moody's equal.

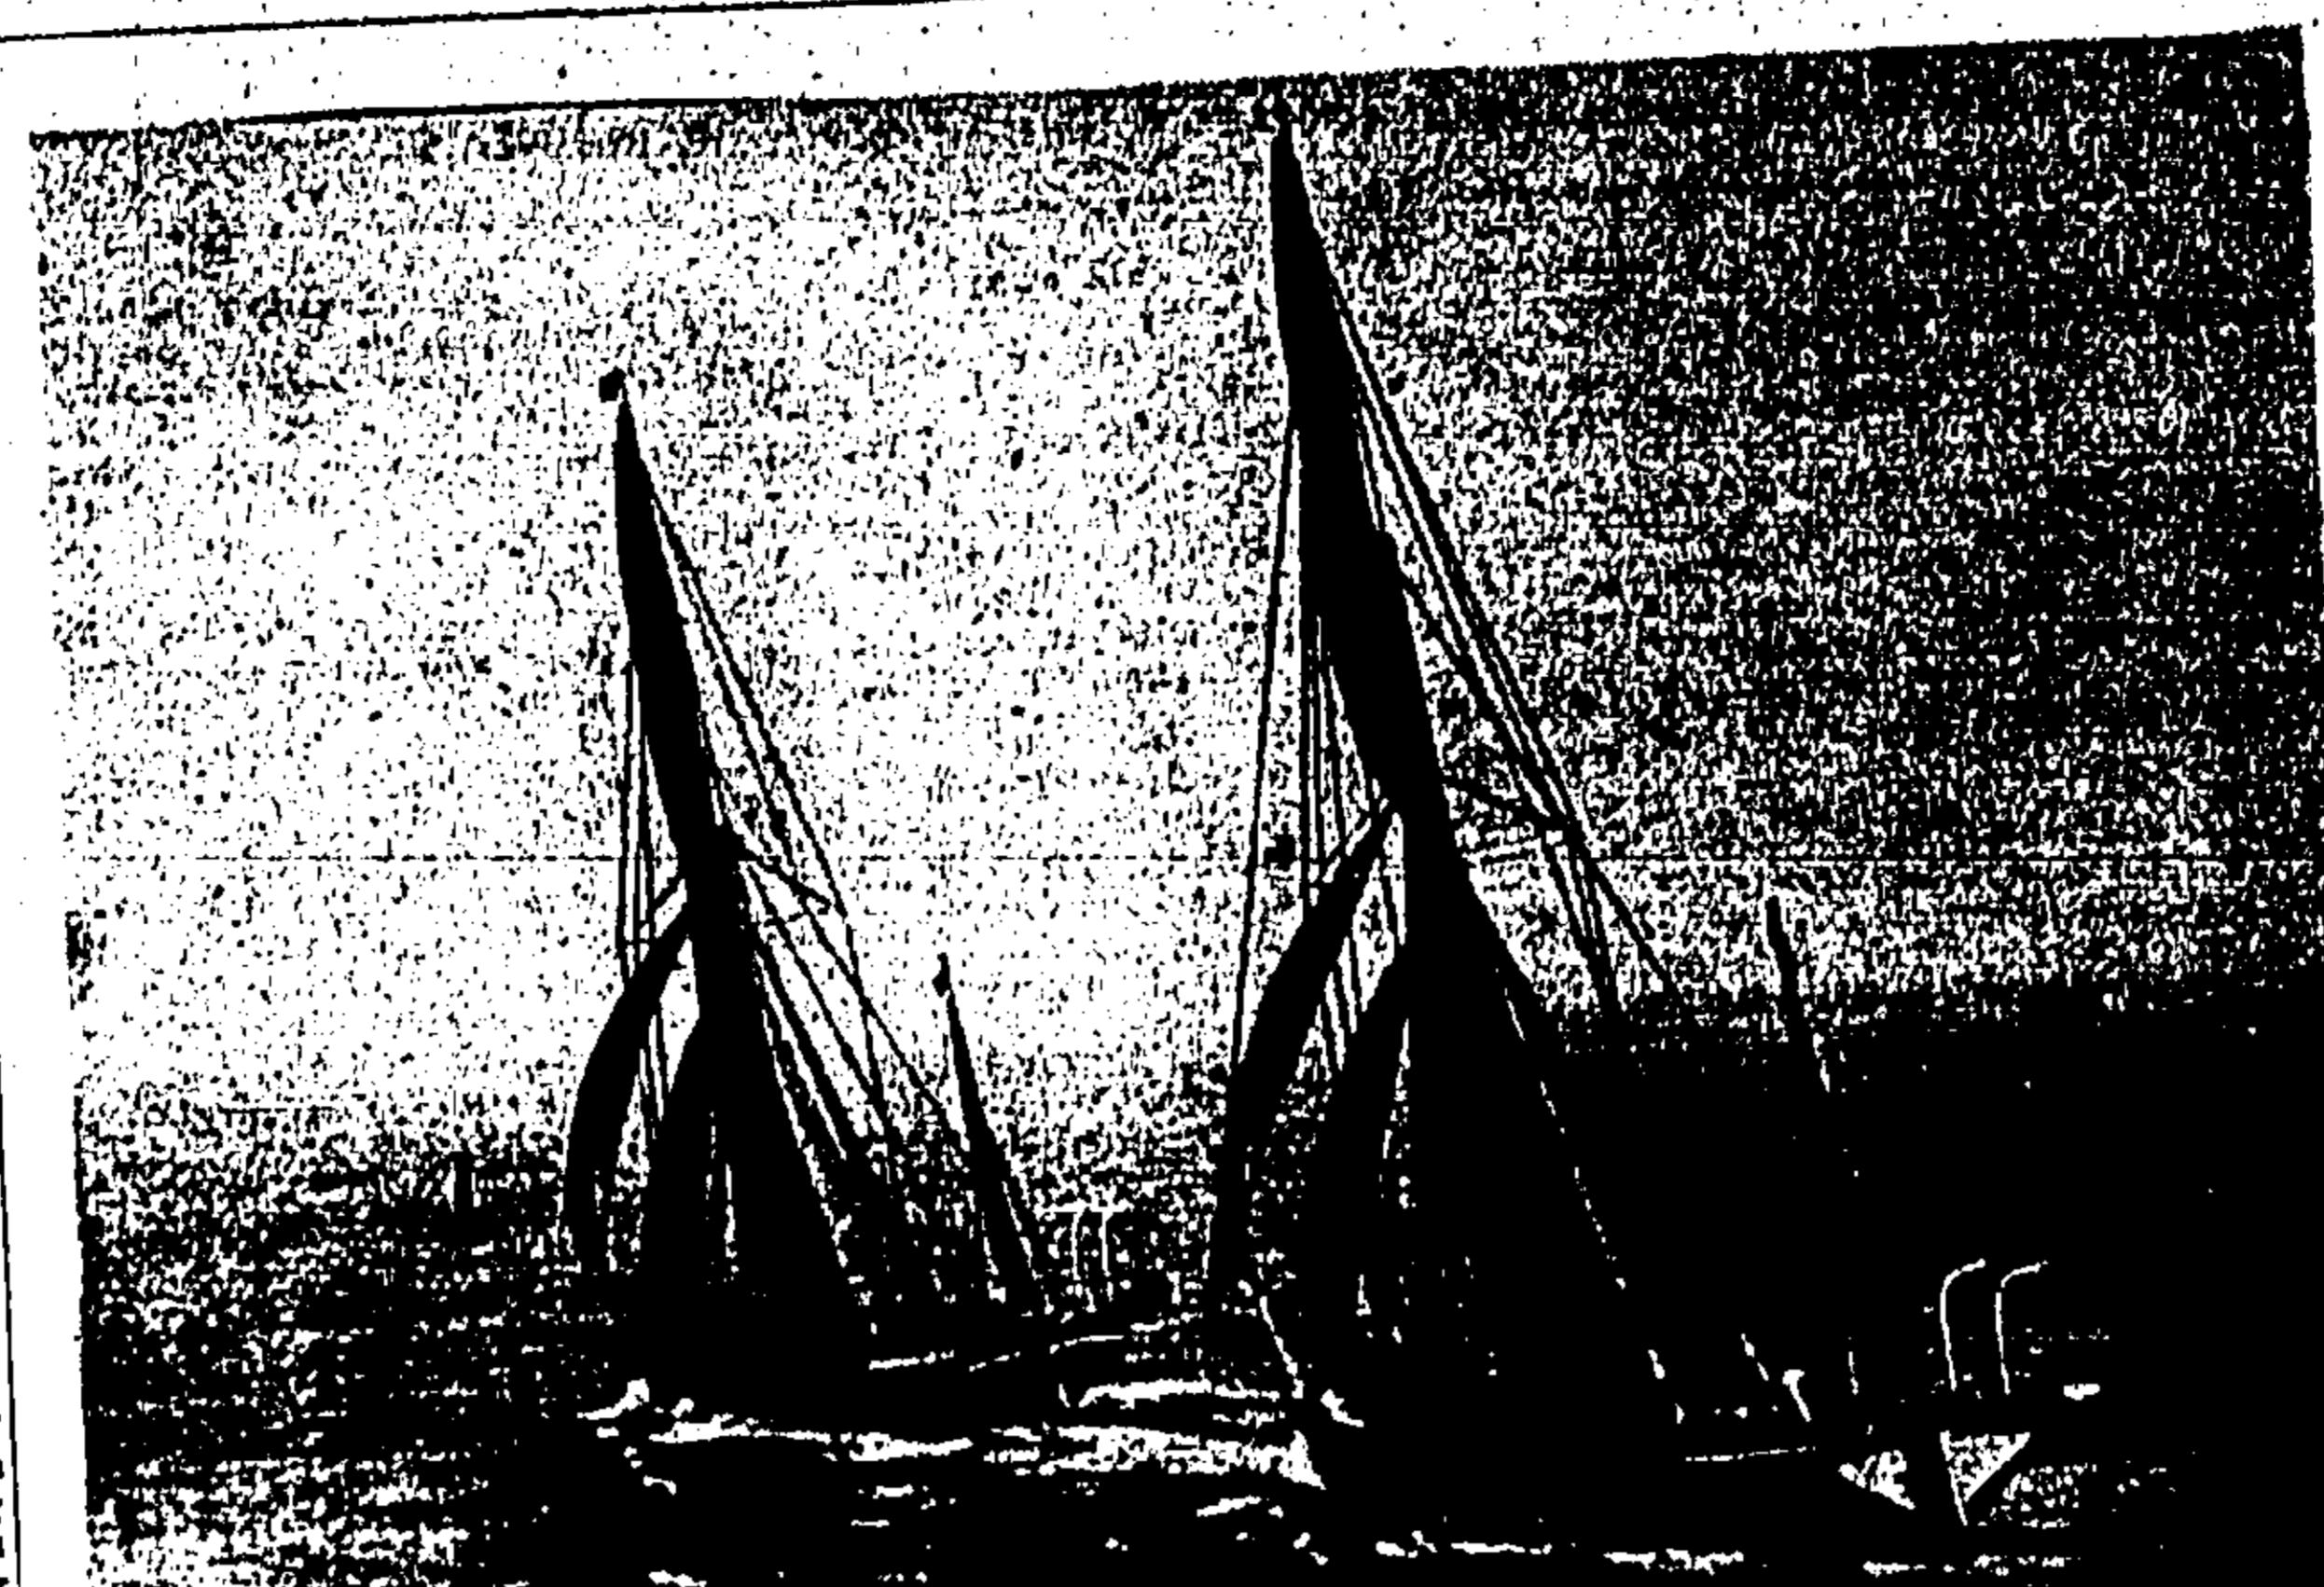

Let us now proceed to praise Mrs. Moody once again. She gave us another gorgeous display of what America's Mrs. Moody can do when she is really confident that she can score winners. She found that Miss Hartigan's second service was vulnerable and proceeded to fire at the chalk in a manner which gave the linesmen the time of their lives, and had an obviously unsettling effect upon Miss Hartigan. Nevertheless, I say with perfect propriety, "Don't blame me, blame Mrs. Moody!"

The difference between the game in which she beat Miss Round and yesterday's battle was that against Miss Round she was able to call the tune more or less often, whereas against Mrs. Moody she was much less frequently able to do so—though she managed it pretty often—and was thus lured into "pressing"—that very expressive golfing phrase—with frequent fatal results.

CURIOS RUN OF PLAY

The run of the play was distinctly curious, and I must confess to being more or less unable to fathom its real significance. With great reluctance, I must, for want of a better excuse, since Miss Hartigan twice needed some sort of an excuse, put it down to the present-day instability of youth. These contentious remarks are prompted by the fact that Miss Hartigan led by 3-1 in the first set, and did not get another game in it, and by 3-0 in the second set and did not get another game in that one either.

Yet she played championship lawn tennis, though not quite regularly,

NEEDLE MATCH TO BE PLAYED

IN "B" DIVISION TENNIS LEAGUE

CHINESE R. C. & SOUTH CHINA

The two leading teams in the "B" Division of the local Lawn Tennis League, the Chinese R.C. and the South China Athletic Association, are due to meet this afternoon on the latter's courts at King's Park.

The Hongkong players are the present leaders of the Division but merely by virtue of having played more than the Kowloon rivals. The top club won five encounters and secured an aggregate of 41 games against four while the Kowloon side won four matches and 33½ games to two and a half.

The programme for this afternoon is as follows:

Indian R.C. v. Hongkong C.C. University v. Civil Service Kowloon C.C. v. Club de Recreio South China v. Chinese R.C.

LEAGUE TABLE

The league table for the "B" Division is appended:

		Sets
Chinese R.C.	5-3	—
South China	4-2	—
Rounders	3-2	27½ 17½
Wellington	0-2	22½ 21½
Hongkong C.C.	4-2	—
Kowloon C.C.	3-1	12½ 19½
University	3-1	11 10
India R.C.	7	—

The only stipulation made by Landis, which makes the contract different from the original one Pitts was going to sign when the International League commissioners stepped in, was that Pitts must not play in any exhibition games. The object of this was to prevent any possible exploitation of Pitts as a curiosity, in view of his past prison life.

SERIAL STORY

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElroy • 1935, NCA Service, Inc.

CHAPTER XXXV

Violet Mercer was weeding her rosebed when she saw Michael ride by. It was the first time she had caught a glimpse of him since his accident and since Katharine's amazing disclosure. Katharine had been gone two days now. Stanley Mercer was taking steps toward the end and the girl was now so anxious to attain the annulment of that astonishing marriage ceremony a few weeks before.

"The man must be a most horrible villain," Violet said to herself, prodding at the earth about the roots of Dorothy Perkins. "And yet—he doesn't look like one in the least." She was rather ashamed of her earlier enthusiasm for Michael.

The whole thing was definitely queer. First the boy had engaged himself to Sally Moon. That made him appear a fortune hunter. Then he had run off with Katharine on what seemed now a most cruel impulse, only to behave as though the whole thing had never happened at all.

Violet stood up, brushing her earth-stained hands impatiently together. She ought to go to see him, ought to find out how he stood in the matter before Stan turned the affair over to Adrianson, their discreet lawyer friend.

She washed her hands at the sink in the gleaming small kitchen and called to Lavinia who was on the porch, shelling peas for the children's lunch, that she was going to walk up the road a bit. Michael's horse had been headed in the direction of the riding club. And he had been alone. It would be a good time to talk to him.

As Violet Mercer turned into the lane that ran beside the old shingled house she could see the tall figure of the man she sought, standing in the doorway of the stable. A blue September haze hung over everything. Yellow leaves here and there drifted down on the muddy paths. There were wild asters and goldenrod blazing in the meadows. Sunbeams made a scarlet tapestry on the hills. "Good morning!"

Michael whirled, his eyes clouded, his muscles taut.

"Good morning," he said without smiling. These days were difficult ones to be got through. Strange people were always coming up to him and being brisk and hearty. He had to send them off beat he could.

Something in the wariness of his attitude put Violet off. All at once she was conscious that her errand lacked dignity. It was not for her to meddle in Katharine's affairs. She said rather lamely, "About the horses—for the little girl. She hasn't been riding lately."

Michael bowed. His tone was formal, aloof.

"Do you mind seeing Jerry, my assistant, about that? I haven't been well lately...." He passed his hand over his eyes and with another stiff little bow, went into the house.

Jerry was at her elbow. Somehow Violet managed to say something coherent to him, to walk away. But her brain was whirling. "Good heavens!" she cried to herself. "What if that should be the explanation of it all? What does he really know what happened?"

You heard of such things. To the healthy person such a possibility seemed extremely far-fetched. But Violet knew it was not out of the bounds of reason.

He had been struck on the head, perhaps. The newspaper account had said "multiple bruises." Who could tell what damage had been done?

She walked swiftly toward her own house, eager to put through a telephone call to her husband.

"Stan, have you got in touch with Adrianson yet?"

"Hm, slow, reassuring voice answered her. "Have an appointment with him at two. Why? Anything happen?"

She dared not talk over the telephone. Everyone said the exchange operators listened. "Can you postpone it?" she asked. "I think I've got something. It may be a hunch. I don't know."

"I don't understand why you want me to do it so quietly," pouted Sally Moon. "Old Ruthie down at the Inglewood News has been calling up every day to see if I've any date to give her. She's anxious to run the story of the wedding, but she doesn't dare say word about it as long as I tell her to hold off. And probably everyone's talking about me. Probably they say the thing's off."

"I have my reasons." Mrs. Moon said solemnly. If Sally weren't so wrapped up in her own affairs, she thought, she would be able to ignore the problem for herself. Annabel, young man was a fledgling mining engineer with a brand new diploma. Sally, marrying a little, felt very superior.

Well, Michael was more tractable since he'd been ill. He really seemed to depend on her these days. She poised him around as she hadn't dared to do before.

Her cousin, Annabel, was coming from Syracuse for the wedding. And Michael had been so vague about providing a best man that Sally had wired Annabel to bring her fiance (expenses paid) to serve. Annabel, young man was a fledgling mining engineer with a brand new diploma. Sally, marrying a little, felt very superior.

Well, Annabel and Joseph would arrive on Tuesday, and they would have a grand wedding Tuesday night.

Daddy Moon had agreed to that. The wedding would be on Wednesday, and invitations would be out by midday the day before. It was, Sally told herself, a pretty queen way to do things, but her father had some crazy notion in his mind. It didn't do to argue with him when he was like this.

She longed to shout the news from the rooftops. But she didn't dare. Well, all the old cats who had been so nasty to her would know soon enough. Let them gnash their teeth then. See how they liked it.

She'd snub them if she ever met them on the street.

Another thing she had to do today. She had to stop at Tiffany's and choose a platinum band that Michael could pay for later. He didn't want to go into the city, he said. She was having to arrange everything. She had even sent out a tailor who was to measure him for correct morning clothes.

She'd thought of everything. There couldn't possibly be a hitch in the proceedings now. A week from Wednesday she would be Lady Carden.

WHIST AND TOMBOLATHE R. E. OLD COMRADES HOLD FUNCTION

Another very successful whist drive and tombola was held in the open air at Wellington Barracks on Monday evening last, by the Royal Engineers Old Comrades Association. Twenty-seven tables were occupied by very enthusiastic supporters of the Branch, thus ensuring completely successful and happy evening's entertainment.

During the interval, when light refreshments were also served, the prizes, eight in all, were very kindly presented by Mrs. R. Chapman, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was given. A humorous incident occurred when Mrs. Chapman presented herself with a prize, having been a winner at whist.

After the whist, practically everyone remained for the tombola which followed.

COUNTERFEIT COIN*FOUR MEN CHARGED AT SESSIONS

Charges of counterfeiting and possession of implements for counterfeiting coins were preferred against four Chinese before the Puisine Judge, Mr. Justice Lindsell, at the Criminal Sessions this morning.

The defendants were Yeung Ping, alias Yeung Hon-kec, Tsang Ming, alias Tsang Hop-wing, Wan Cheung and Tsau Chuen, and they were charged with (a) counterfeiting 15 Hongkong silver dollars and 18 ten-cent pieces; (b) possession of moulds for coining; and (c) possession of counterfeit coins.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution, and the accused, who pleaded 'Not Guilty', were not legally represented.

The jurors empanelled were: B.O.A. Proulx (foreman), Chan See-ming, Sun Him-lai, R.G. Griggs, F.M.X. da Souza, E.O.P. Hyndman and Pui Man-lok.

Outlining the facts of the case, Mr. Fraser informed the jury that the charge against the accused was coining, but the Crown laid no particular stress on the guilt on any accused. They were all charged with the same offence.

POLICE RAID

On the afternoon of May 30, Inspector Cunningham, Sergeant Goodwin and a party of Chinese detectives went to No. 10 Takulung Road, second floor, in consequence of information received. One of the Chinese officers, Lam Chi-ming, went up to the floor alone, while the others waited on the first floor landing. Lam knocked and he was admitted on the pretext of seeing the first accused. As he was being admitted, a noise was heard as if a door inside the floor was being closed. The detective entered, followed closely by the other police officers.

Five men, including the four accused, were found on the premises. The first accused was seen squatting down in the middle of the front cubicle facing a chatty and holding a ladle over it. The second accused was squatting down on the other side of the chatty holding a pair of chopsticks and a tablespoon. The third defendant was on the left of the first accused, holding a pair of scissors on the right hand and a counterfeit dollar on the left. It was apparent that he was cutting off the edges of the dollar with the scissors. The fourth accused was beside the third defendant and he was seen to pick up another of the counterfeit dollars from a piece of glass and place it on a mat.

The Chinese detective, Lam Chi-ming, arrested the second accused, while the other three were caught by other police officers just as they were running out from the cubicle.

THE EQUIPMENT

Mr. Fraser then went on to describe the paraphernalia found on the premises, and said that in the trousers of the first defendant were found two genuine ten-cent pieces and a knife with plaster of Paris in it. A genuine silver dollar was also found in his wallet.

After his arrest, the first accused gave the police certain information in consequence of which a visit was paid to a house at Ng Yiu Tau village and there were found a number of broken plaster of Paris moulds, three pieces of antimony sulphite ore and two pieces of glass.

As the result of another statement made by the first accused, and it was actually pointed out by the second defendant, the police went to No. 30 Po Kong Road, first floor, and found a bottle of sodium cyanide and an empty bottle which had contained nitric acid.

When the four accused were charged, only one of them made an incriminating statement and that was the first defendant who said: "It was a momentary mistake. I don't know it was against the law. Take pity on my wife and children and deal with me leniently."

Continuing, Mr. Fraser said the second accused was represented by counsel at the Magistracy and it appeared to him that the defence was that one of the police officers who took part in the raid was telling lies and that the case was a frame-up by the fifth man found on the premises but who was not charged.

CAUGHT RED-HANDED

The case for the Crown was that the four accused were caught red-handed in the act of coining.

Mr. C. A. Grimes, of the P.W.D., was then called and he testified to having drawn plans of the second floor of No. 10 Takulung Road.

Mr. Arthur Jackson, acting Government Analyst, deposed to having received 14 parcels from Inspector Cunningham. One of the parcels contained seven plaster of Paris moulds; three of them had impressions of 1890 Hongkong silver dollars, two had 1889 ten-

"Glorious Goodwood"*BIG HOLIDAY CROWD ATTENDS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright Telegraph
Materials Ordinance, 1934. Received July 21, 1935 a.m.)

London, July 30.

To-day is the beginning of "Glorious Goodwood," which marks the end of the London season. A large holiday crowd was present on the course, many coming by motor coaches from seaside resorts. The beautiful scenery in and around Goodwood was seen at its best, for the weather was fine and sunny.

Lady Ludlow's Green Oar (7-1) won the Stewards Cup, Captain Field's Almond Hill (100-6) was second, and Sir Victor Sassoon's Cora Deans (100-7) third.

Sammy Wragg rode the winner, this being a lucky last-minute change, as Weston had previously been engaged to ride Green Oar. The winner's time of one minute, twelve seconds, was a record for the course of six furlongs.

The Aga Khan's Mahmoud, one of the most promising two-year-olds, won the Richmond Stakes of six furlongs, at 2 to 1. — Reuter Special.

FALSE PRETENCESUNEMPLOYED MAN OFFERS JOBS

Charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning on counts of using false pretences to obtain the sum of $6 from Fung Yuen, aged 28, a bean curd maker, by purporting that he could obtain employment for complainant, when in fact he was not in a position to do so, and of using false pretences to obtain the sum of $2.80 from Cheng Man, aged 48, also a bean curd maker, by purporting that he could obtain employment for complainant when he was not in a position to do so, a 20-year-old man. Tong Kwok-lam, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour on each charge, the terms to run consecutively. Both complainants live at 10, Wai Tak Lane.

Prosecuting, Det. Sgt. Fowlie stated that defendant and complainants are clansmen. The complainant had been telling defendant that they needed employment, and defendant promised to get them jobs as bricklayers with the Leo Cheung firm of contractors, of China Building, if they paid him certain sums of money.

On July 26, second complainant gave defendant $1, and on July 26, gave him another $1.80. First complainant gave defendant $3 on both occasions. Time passed, and as the jobs were not forthcoming, they handed defendant over to the police. Defendant was unemployed, and in no position to obtain employment for other people.

LAND DIVIDEND

The Board of Directors of the Hongkong Land Investment Co., Ltd., have declared an interim dividend of one dollar per share for the six months ended June 30, 1935.

cent piece impressions, and two had impressions of 1898 ten cent pieces. The ten-cent moulds were ready wrapped for moulding.

Among the other parcels, there was a ladle containing some metal, the composition of which was 95 per cent tin, four per cent antimony and one per cent lead. There were also three pieces of antimony sulphite ore, and three strips of zinc which had obviously been used for shaping the outside of the moulds.

There were 15 counterfeit Hongkong silver dollars dated 1890. Their composition was 94.9 per cent tin, 4.4 per cent antimony and 0.7 per cent lead. Another parcel contained 48 counterfeit ten-cent pieces. Seventeen of them were dated 1898 and the rest 1899.

Their composition was 95.8 per cent tin, 3.3 per cent antimony and 0.9 per cent lead. In a separate parcel there was a genuine Hongkong silver dollar and two ten-cent pieces, one dated 1898 and the other 1899.

There were also a number of bottles and a wooden tub, which contained plaster of Paris, sodium cyanide, peanut oil, concentrated nitric acid, spirit varnish and water.

POLICE EVIDENCE

Lam Chi-ming, Ho Sang and Lau Chi, three Chinese detectives, gave evidence that they took part in the raid and found the accused in the premises.

Detective Sergeant C. H. Goodwin testified to finding the articles in the premises and added that when the police officers rushed up the stairs they were on tip-toe.

Their shoes did not creak and the reason for making as little noise as possible was to surprise the occupants of the house.

The case is proceeding.

AMERICA'S SYMPATHY*RELIGIOUS FREEDOM
FIRST PRINCIPLE

Washington, July 30. American sympathy towards the exercise of religious freedom and liberty of conscience in all countries is expressed by Mr. William Phillips, Under-Secretary for State, in a letter to Jewish organisations which recently protested to the State Department against alleged anti-Jewish persecutions in Germany.

The letter says that concepts of religious freedom and liberty of conscience for all constitute the most fundamental principles of our civilisation and political faith, adding that the American people are always sympathetic to the maintenance of those concepts in the United States as well as in other nations.—Reuter.

RECEIPTS LACK STAMPS*FURTHER TREASURY PROSECUTIONS

In a Treasury prosecution before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, Chin Sik-chor, of E. Hing and Coy, 25 Wing Wo Street, was fined $5 on a summons for having an improperly stamped receipt for $73.62, received from Singon and Company, 37 Hing Lung Street, on June 16 last year.

On summons for splitting accounts of $23.78 and $31.78, Man Sang Cheong, of 126 Second Street, was fined a total of $20.

On the application of Sergeant J. G. Whitcroft, who appeared for the prosecution, a summons against Tin Hing-wing, of the Wing Kee Street, for having an unstamp receipt for $22.40, received from Man Tak, 42 Hennessy Road, Wan Chai, was withdrawn.

CATTLE STEALINGFARMER AND DEALER
SENTENCED

The theft of three oxen from villagers on Lantau Island on July 10 had a sequel before Mr. Kennedy Skipton at the District Office South yesterday, when Chan Kwong, 24, farmer, of Mu Wo village, was fined a total of $750, or four months' hard labour in default, on three charges of theft, while Chan Yun, 46, cattle dealer of Castle Peak, was fined $150, or three months on a charge of receiving.

Sergeant L. J. Wagland, for the prosecution, stated that the first defendant, Chan Kwong, and two others who were not in custody, hired a junk and went from Castle Peak to Lantau Island, where they took the oxen from different pens. They returned to Castle Peak where they were met by Chan Yun who took the cattle to Mataukok in an attempt to sell them to another dealer.

NEW WEAPON OF WAR*LEWIS GUNS WILL BE DISPLACED

London, July 30.

In the House of Commons, Captain Douglas Hacking, Parliamentary Secretary for War, announced that as the result of a trial extending over several years, the War Office has decided to adopt the Czechoslovakian light machine gun, which will be known as the Vzende gun, instead of the Lewis gun.

Accordingly, an agreement has been made to use the patent for the manufacture of such machine-guns in Britain.

Captain Hacking added that the Army would continue to use the Vickers heavy machine-guns.

MORE THEFTS
REPORTED*TWO EUROPEANS
VICTIMISED

The theft of a quantity of motor tools, valued at $15, from his car which was parked in Hospital Road, outside the Government Civil Hospital, has been reported to the police by Mr. E. S. C. Brooks, of Hastings and Company.

In a report made to the police Mrs. Silksone of 118 Boundary Street, Kowloon Tong, stated that between 7 and 8 p.m. on Monday, some person stole a silver rose bowl valued at $40.

Mr. A. C. Jeffreys, of the Hongkong Telephone Company, has noted the police of the theft of about 7 lbs. of telephone wire connection between houses in Argyle Street between midnight and 8 o'clock this morning.
